VISIONS OF OUR OWN

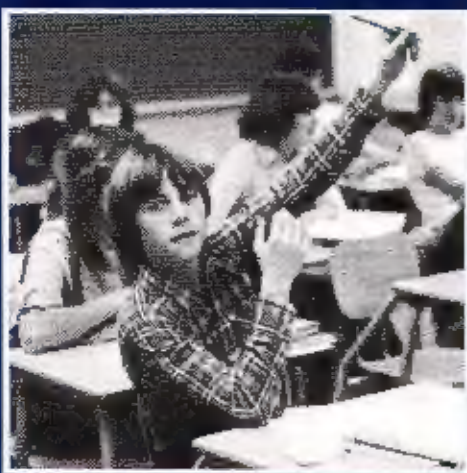

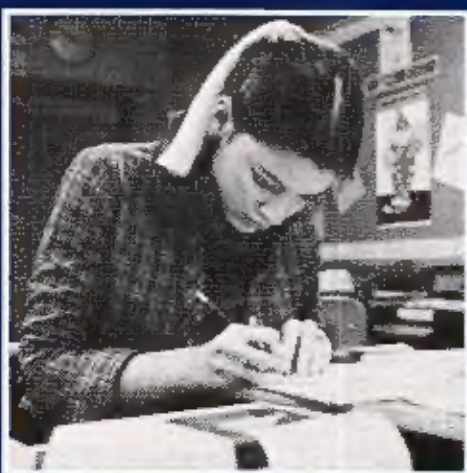

Enter the camera's eye, and focus
Upon the scene.
Scan the familiar set,
Search for the actors:
2,200 of them.
Zoom in on their intricate interplays.
Crowd scenes and soliloquies,
Comedies and tragedies.
Catch a close-up of
A quick smile in the hallway,
A puzzled frown over a math book,
A wide-eyed cheer in the stands,
A sinking groan in the lab.
Leave no picture out—
Let no one forget.
The camera sees all, records all,
As the story unfolds.
Each moment is precious,
Each glance, unique.
We share them.
The scenes the camera captures
Are all . . .

VISIONS OF OUR OWN.

An individual.

His eyes, sensitive as the camera's lens—

His mind, quick as the camera's shutter—

Snapping up information,
Burning it onto the brain's negatives
At the rate of 1/60 of a second.

Quickly, smoothly, steadily,
the facts come.

Developed, processed, sorted—
They form a picture.

Days when the image blurs,
the mind fogs,
the lens cap seems glued in place.

No instant color.

Apathy and frustration struggle to control the mind.

Searching, pondering, discussing, correcting—Flash!

And all is clear—20/20 vision.

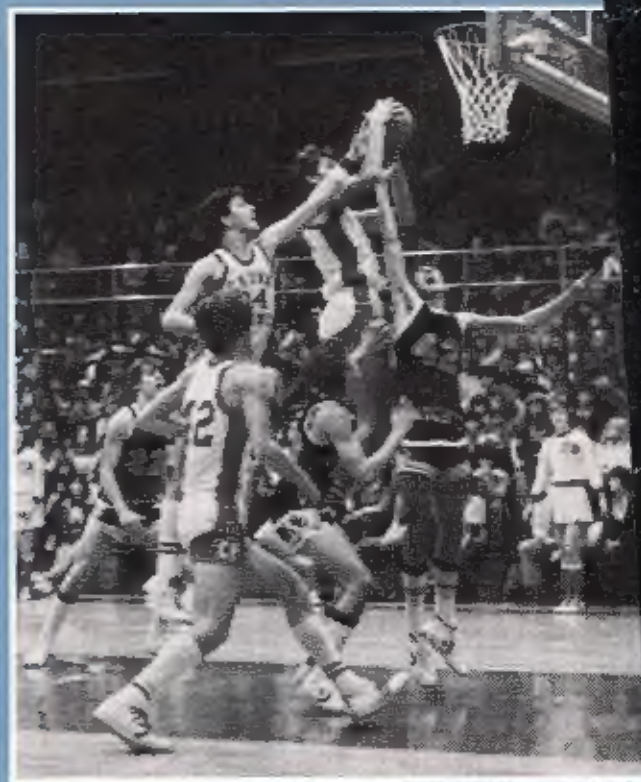

The ideas we develop

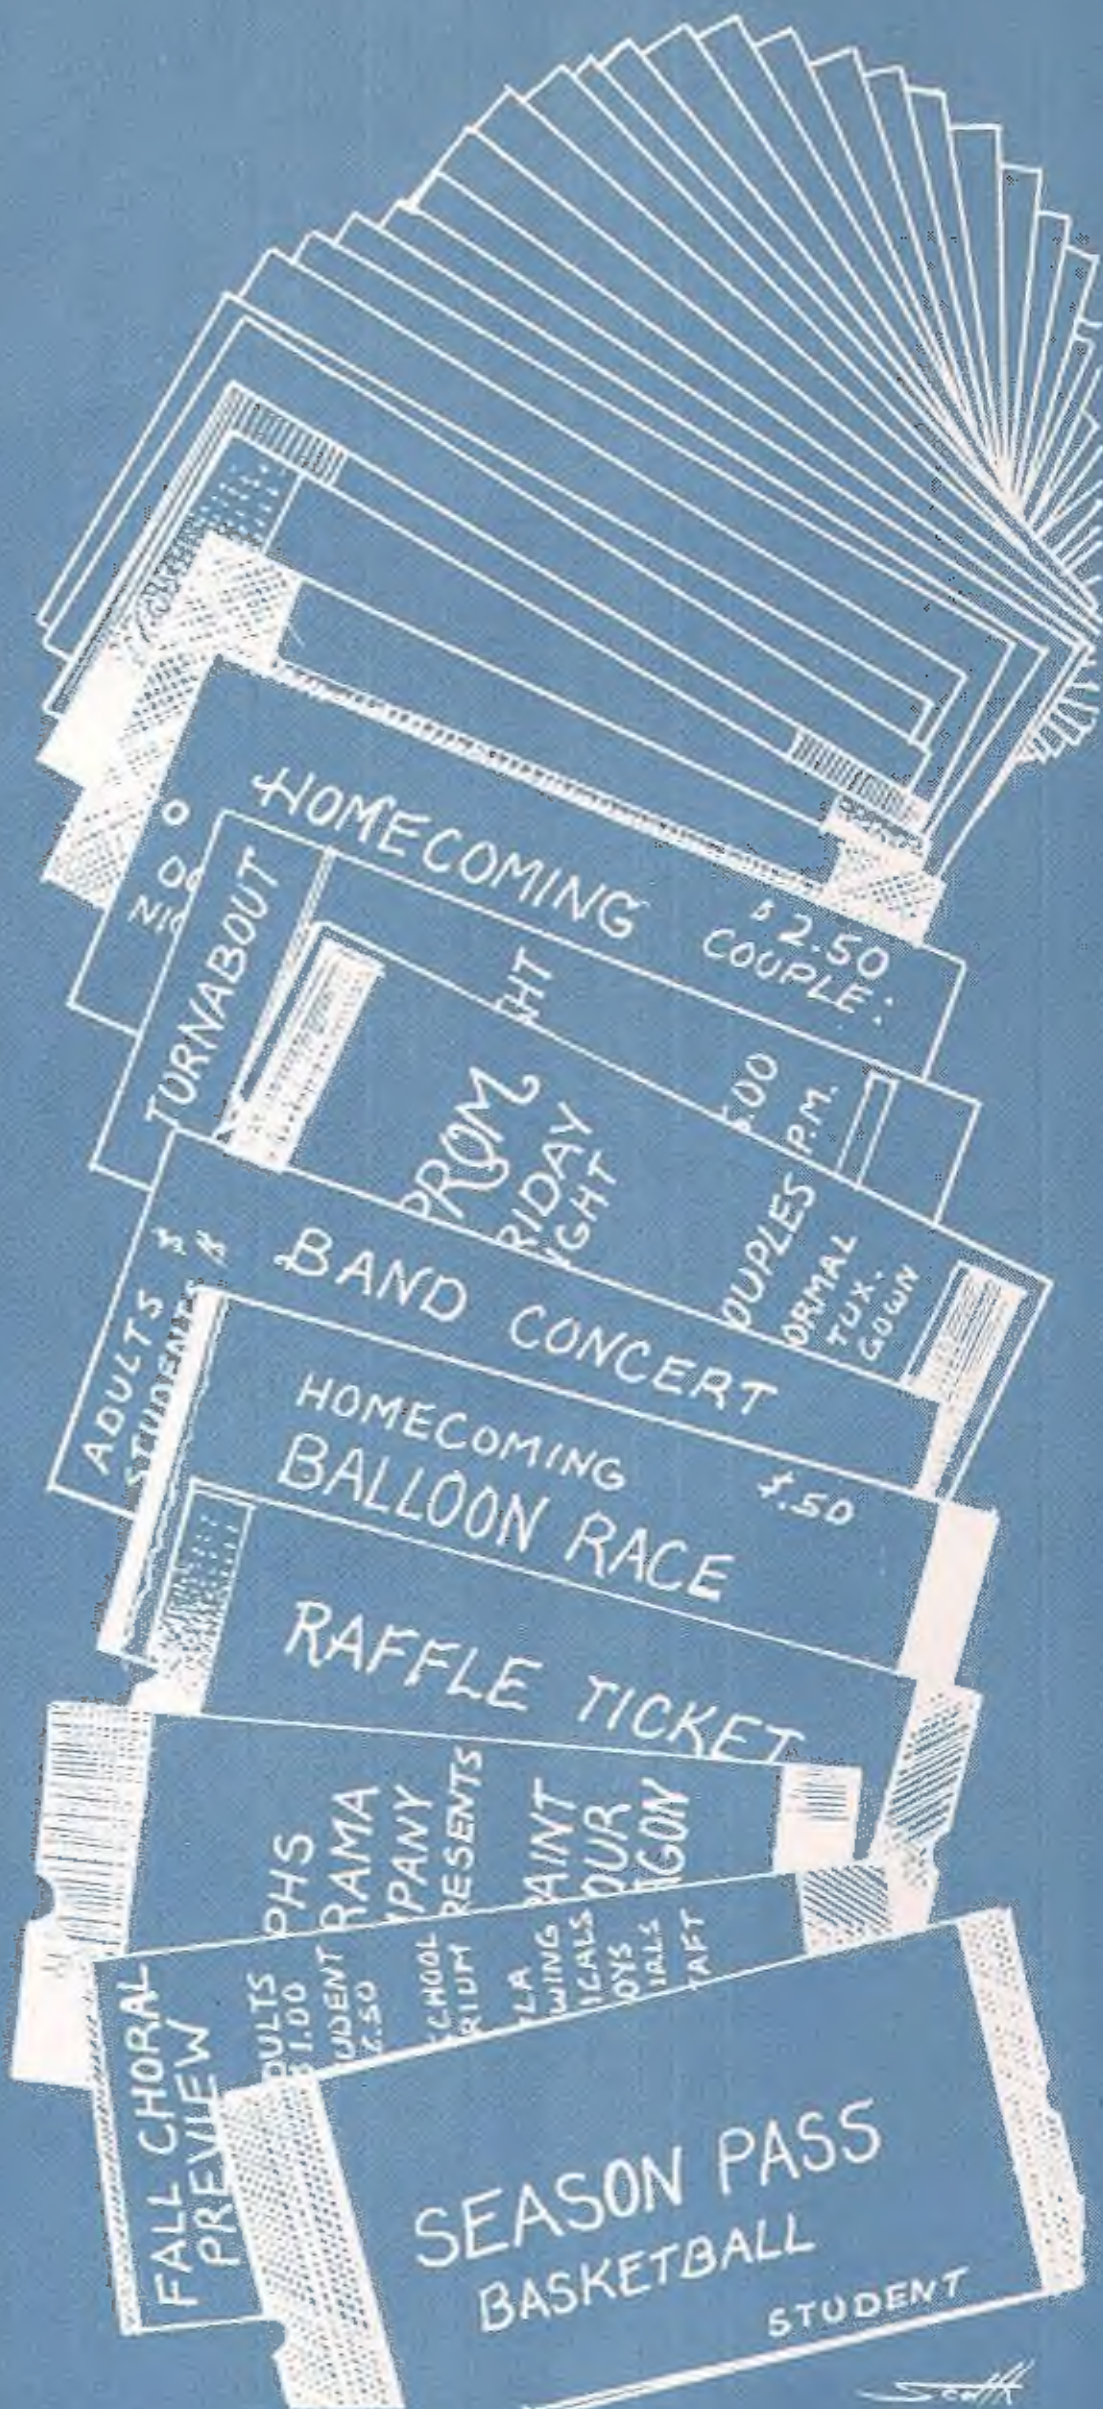

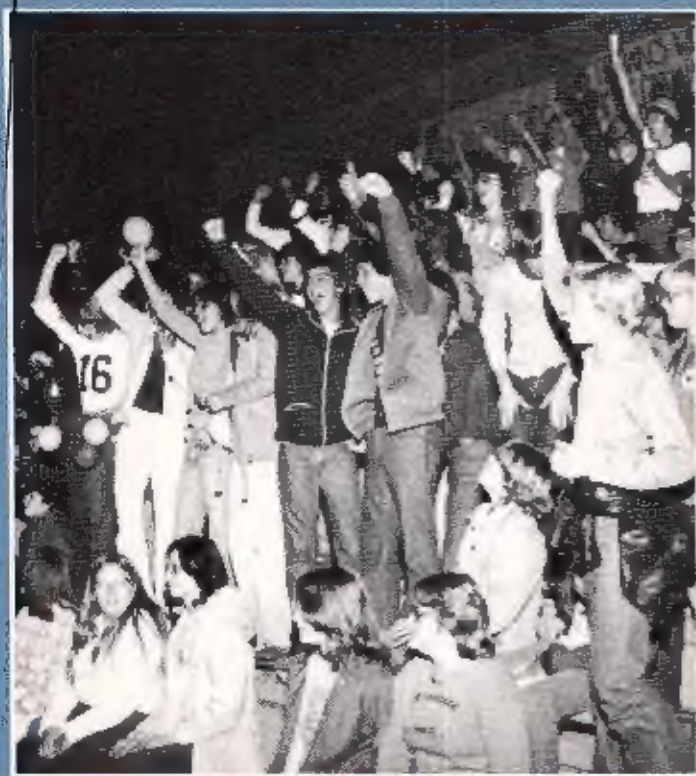

Are all . . .

VISIONS OF OUR OWN.

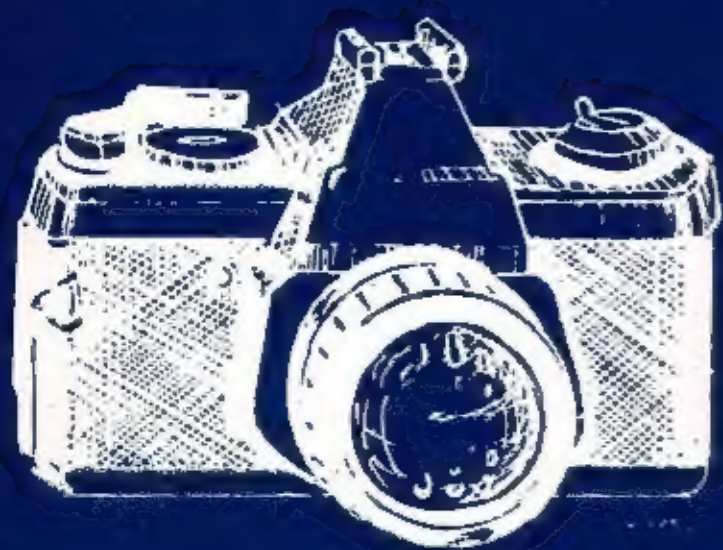

We participate in games, dances, clubs—
Any activity, every activity, that ignites our restless spirits.
Often frantic, we search for Friday night fun.
Performing, cheering, enjoying,
Laughing, loving, being
Surrounded by those who help
Focus our lives.
We embrace the emotions,
treasure the camaraderie,
And collect the memories like photographs.
Carefully, and chronologically,
We paste them to our minds,
Drag them out on rainy days and remember—
laugh again with those we love.
But impatient, ever restless,
We shove the photographs
to the backs of our minds.
And run to start the reel again.
Yet the images we save
Are all . . .

VISIONS OF OUR OWN.

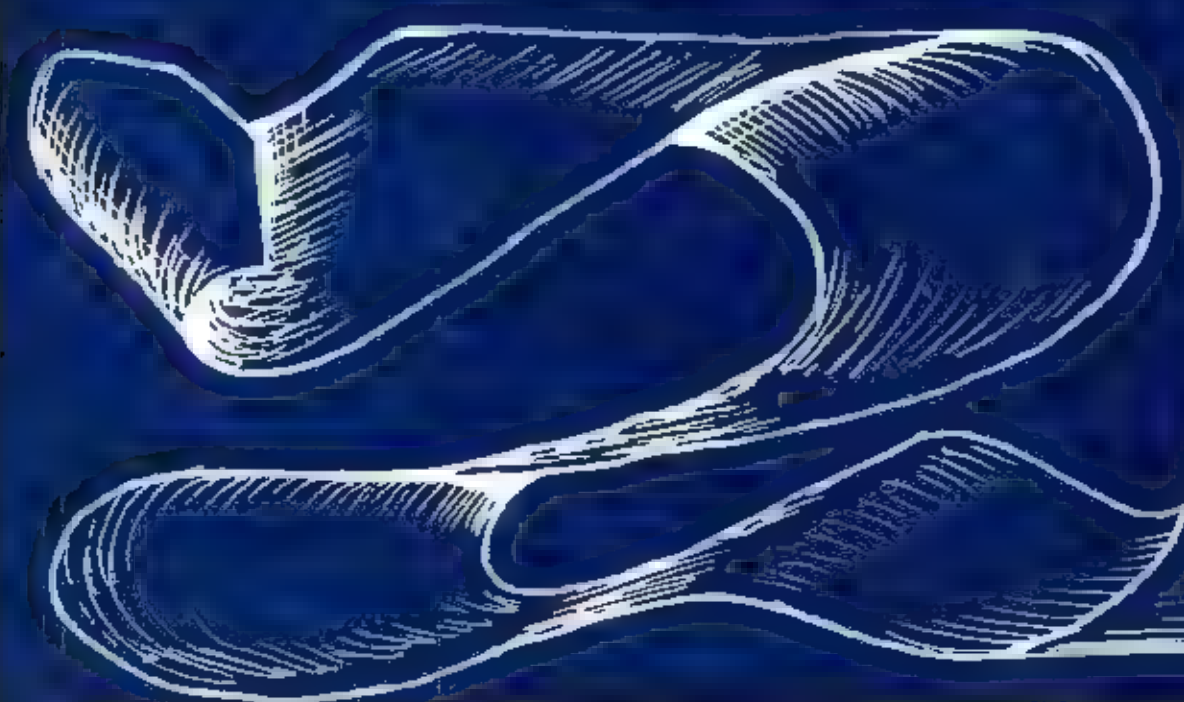

Darkness—an empty room.
At one end, a white screen.
Silence, then hesitant clicking.
A shaft of light flickers, then shines,
Illuminating with color and motion
What was once blank.
The story unfolds—a tale of
Drama and romance,
Comedy and tragedy,
Glamor, and plain folk.
In short, the world-scaled down to one high school
and 2,200 students.
Now, the show hits the road—
Ready for a wider audience,
But the camera never ceases to crank,
the projector, to whirl.
The scenes change,
The actors vary,
But the camera continues to spin
Visions of past, present, and future . . .
VISIONS OF OUR OWN.

Progress made in Mid-East struggles

The world faced a year of great discrepancies from the world-wide celebration of a birthday party to the realization of cult power.

The nation lost artist Norman Rockwell, who began his career in 1912 and was made famous by the Saturday Evening Post.

Golda Meir, as prime minister of Israel, guided her country through five of its most difficult years. Mrs. Meir died at the age of 80. She is credited with playing a key role in determining the destiny of Israel.

Mork and Mindy, a new situation comedy, quickly climbed to the top of the charts. The main character, Mork (Robin Williams), a visitor from the planet Ork, stays with Mindy (Pam Dawber).

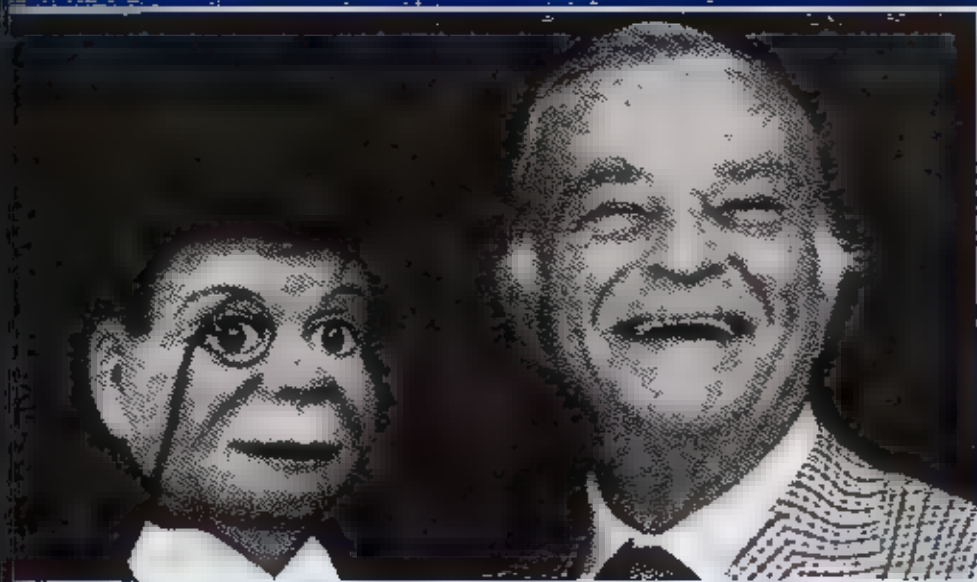

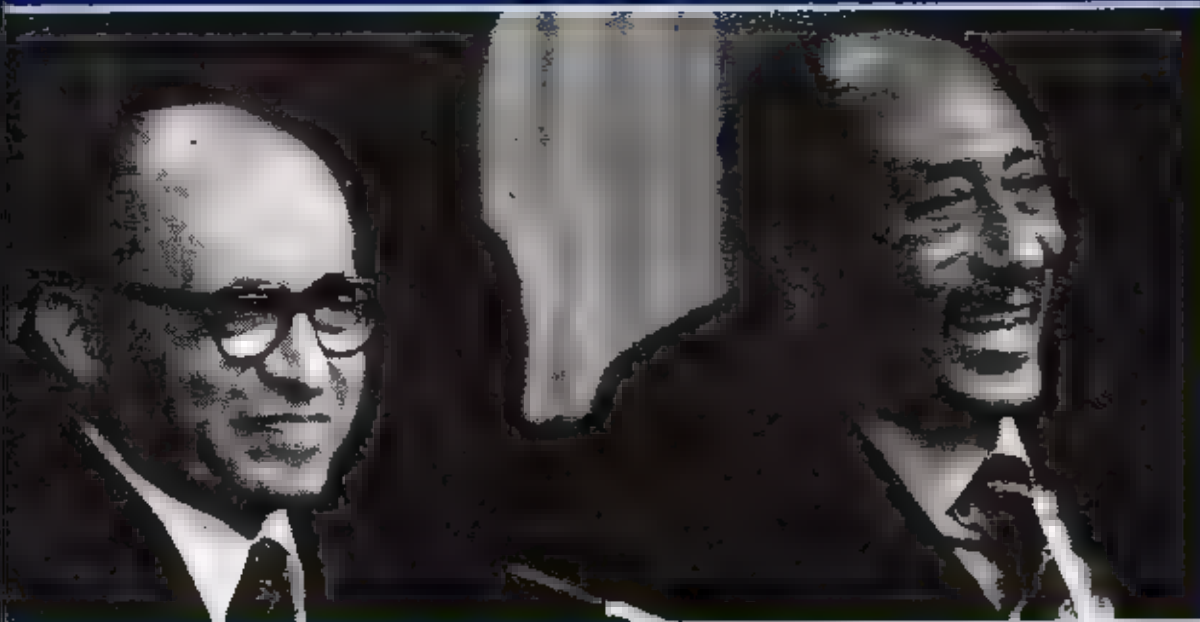

Mickey Mouse, who came into the world through the pen of Walt Disney, celebrated his fiftieth birthday this year.

President Carter, Israel's Prime Minister Menachem Begin, and Egypt's President Anwar Sadat struggled to solve the complex issues of the Middle East. The main outcome of these summit talks is the promise of better communication and understanding in the future on all sides.

The whole world marvelled at the details of the Peoples' Temple mass suicide. After Congressman Leo Ryan flew to the cult headquarters in Africa to investigate rumors of extortion, the cult's leader ordered the members to kill themselves. Over 900 adults and children complied with his wishes. Ryan was killed by cult members as he and his staff attempted to flee the chaos.

The tradition of the Catholic Church was disrupted this year for the first time in 400 years as a non-Italian pope was elected. With the death of Pope Paul VI, Pope John Paul I was elected by the College of Cardinals. Pope John Paul I died after ruling for a very short while. Pope John Paul II, from Poland, was then elected pope.

Menachem Begin and Anwar Sadat (top) were awarded the Nobel Peace Prize for their peacemaking efforts in the Middle East.

Photos of families clasped together in death (middle, left) brought the Jonestown mass suicide to the attention of the world.

Golda Meir (middle, right) worked as a school teacher and librarian in the USA.

Mr. Charles Swisher (above) owns one of the new shops in the bottom of the courthouse. Mr. Swisher's shop is called the Cotton-Wood Shoppe. It specializes in pictures done in swirled cotton on black felt. Some other shops that have opened this year include a book store, yarn shop, a special shop selling blends of coffee, and an antique store.

Senior Robin Hamberg (top right) was crowned the 1978 Junior Miss. Robin won both the talent and judges' interview competition.

A new elementary school (right) was built on West Summit Street. This school was built to replace the old Timothy Ball School.

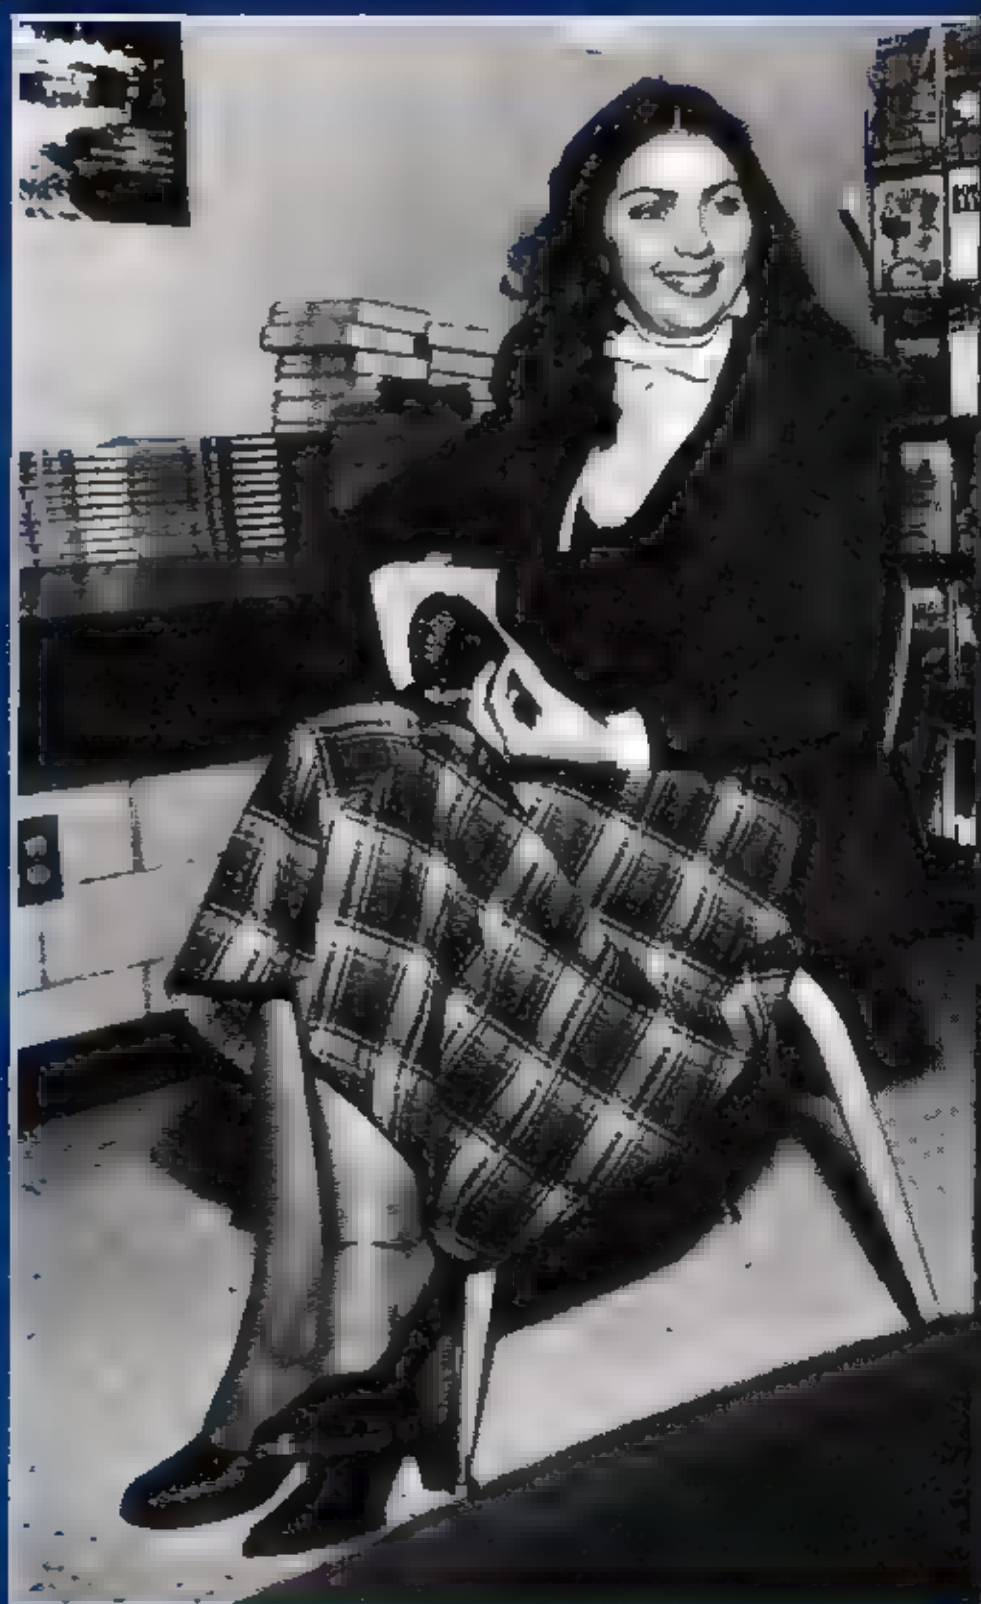

FASHION

Senior Jane Zdanowicz (above) displays the winter fashion of boots and soft cowl neck dresses.

Junior Nancy Smith (top, right) reads a novel for a class assignment. Nancy wears the layered look with a frilly blouse, velvet vest, wool blazer and skirt, high heels, and an ankle bracelet.

Many styles of high heeled shoes (right) were popular this year. Both the clog and the closed styles were worn.

CPHS students dress to fit their moods

The fashion-conscious folks at CPHS were pretty much able to dress as the mood struck them this year. For both girls and guys, the casual look for school and a more conservative look for dress were stressed.

Styles seemed to be going back to those of the '40s and '50s. Two-piece suits replaced last year's three-piece suits and the triangular and layered looks once again came into vogue.

Although vests had not entirely left the fashion scene, a more common sight was slacks and blazer or skirt and blazer.

To give the body a triangular look, padded shoulders and straighter skirts, jeans, and slacks were once again in style. Also popular were pleated pants, leggings, and, for the final touch, spikes or sandals with thin, high heels for girls and earth shoes or workboots for guys.

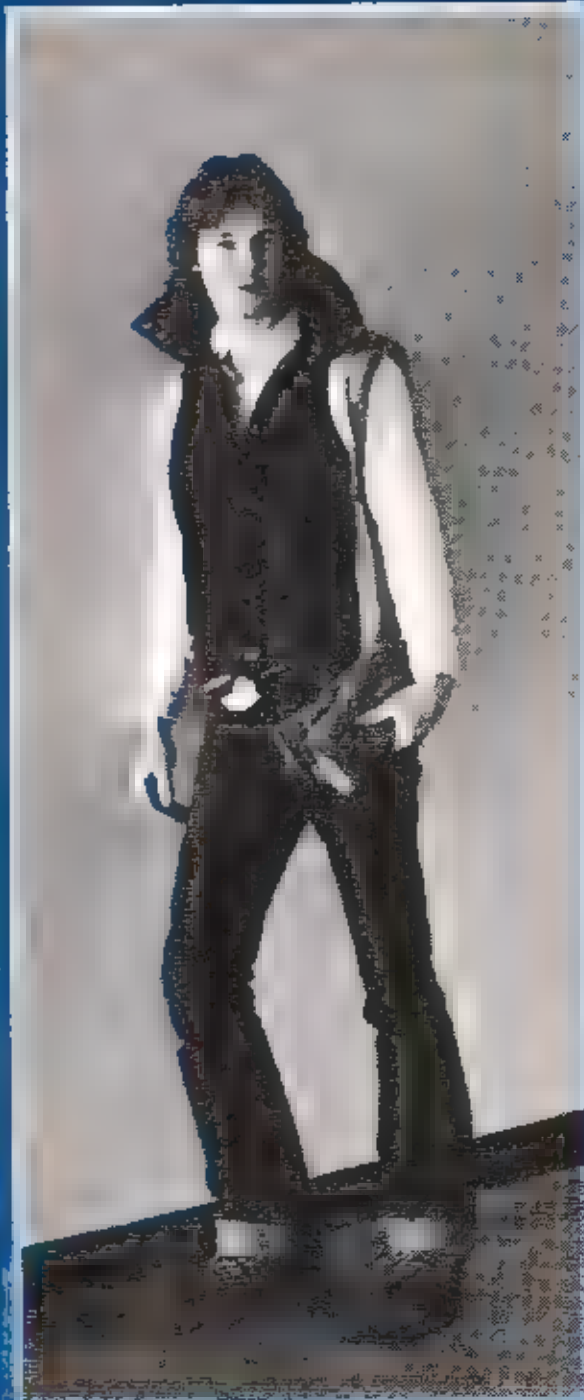

An equally popular fashion of 1978-79 was the layered look. Big at discos and just as big in schools were baggy tops which were seen tucked in, with a belt or worn out. Baggy tops were most often made of cotton, polyester, satin or silk-like material.

For girls, wool or wool-like material, silky or satiny material, chenille, and lace were the most popular pullover materials. For guys, it was wools, tweeds, corduroy, and cotton. And for those who didn't want to wear all those layers, there were snap-top collars and sleeves.

Two other features of girls' fashions were the long scarf and small bow ties. The long scarf was worn around the neck, under the collar, with lace or cotton tops.

For dress, girls wore shoes with thin, black heels and guys wore loafers or dress shoes. Jewelry included anklets, bracelets, sparkly hair combs, and barrettes.

The big thing to remember about 1978-79 fashion was "dress to fit your mood."

The out-of-doors look is modeled (above) by John Hasse. John wears a goose-down vest, jeans, down-filled gloves, and hiking boots.

Leslie Caulfield (left) presents a speech in her English class. Soft, blousy sweaters worn over cowl necks were as popular as the new wool skirts.

HOME COMING

Samurai Seniors win powderpuff

Long standing traditions and new activities combined to make the 1978 Homecoming a special time to be remembered.

The Booster Club, sponsored by Mr. Paul Hernandez, organized the daily activities to promote school spirit. Each day a new theme was featured and students dressed to fit the mood. Monday was classic color day, Tuesday was very casual with overall and hat day, Wednesday slid by with 50s and grease day, Thursday featured little kids day, and Friday exploded with the school colors—red and white.

In addition to these activities, intramural competition was held during lunch hours each day. Monday began the week with a 3-legged race, Tuesday featured a 200 meter swimming relay, Wednesday pulled through with the tug-of-war, Thursday provided a 880 meter running relay, and Friday finished off the week with a Frisbee distance contest. At the end of the week the senior class was awarded the spirit trophy for its outstanding enthusiasm and contributions throughout the week.

On Wednesday the Student Council, sponsored by Mr. Mark Gallison, presented a Fall Festival. The fun took place outside in the back section of the school grounds. The weather was a little chilly, so everyone bundled up. A raffle, egg toss, pie-throwing contest, greased pig contest, and many other games highlighted the evening.

On Thursday the Samurai Seniors stomped all over the Jaw-Breaking Juniors. The final score was 14-8 in favor of the seniors.

On Friday, the cheerleaders and G-Pettes entertained at a pep assembly as the football coach introduced the starting players for the game.

The Homecoming parade preceded the game. For the first time in a long while the junior float beat the senior float in the float competition. The Thespian entry won the award for best car.

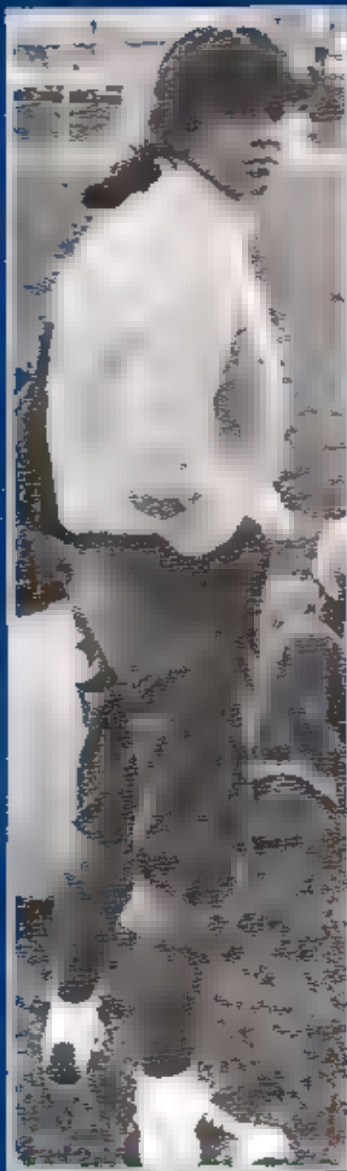

The Lettermen and GVC released the balloons for the balloon race at the start of the Homecoming game. The band performed a spectacular half time show while the class princesses and queen candidates lined up on the field. Sue Cowan was crowned Homecoming Queen. The Bulldogs tried their best but were defeated by Highland with a score of 14 to 7.

The following night Doug Byrd was chosen as Mr. Football at the Homecoming dance. The Booster Club sponsored the dance, and its theme was "Autumn Dream." The band was "Sarikos."

S. C. sponsors Fall Festival at Homecoming

As usual, Student Council played an active role in the year's activities.

The first big project was the Fall Festival, held in conjunction with Homecoming. The festival was designed to involve the entire community in the high school and to provide more Homecoming fun for students.

Students were given the opportunity to vent their frustrations on teachers in the pie-throwing contest. The festival also featured a greased pig contest, greased pole, raffles, and other games.

With the help of Booster Club, Student Council sponsored Homecoming activities.

In December Student Council organized the basketball game between the CPHS faculty and Chicago Cubs.

During basketball season Student Council helped organize the activities during the sectional spirit week. It also sponsored disco dances in the auxiliary gym after several home basketball games.

M & R Rush returned to CPHS in January for a Student Council-sponsored concert.

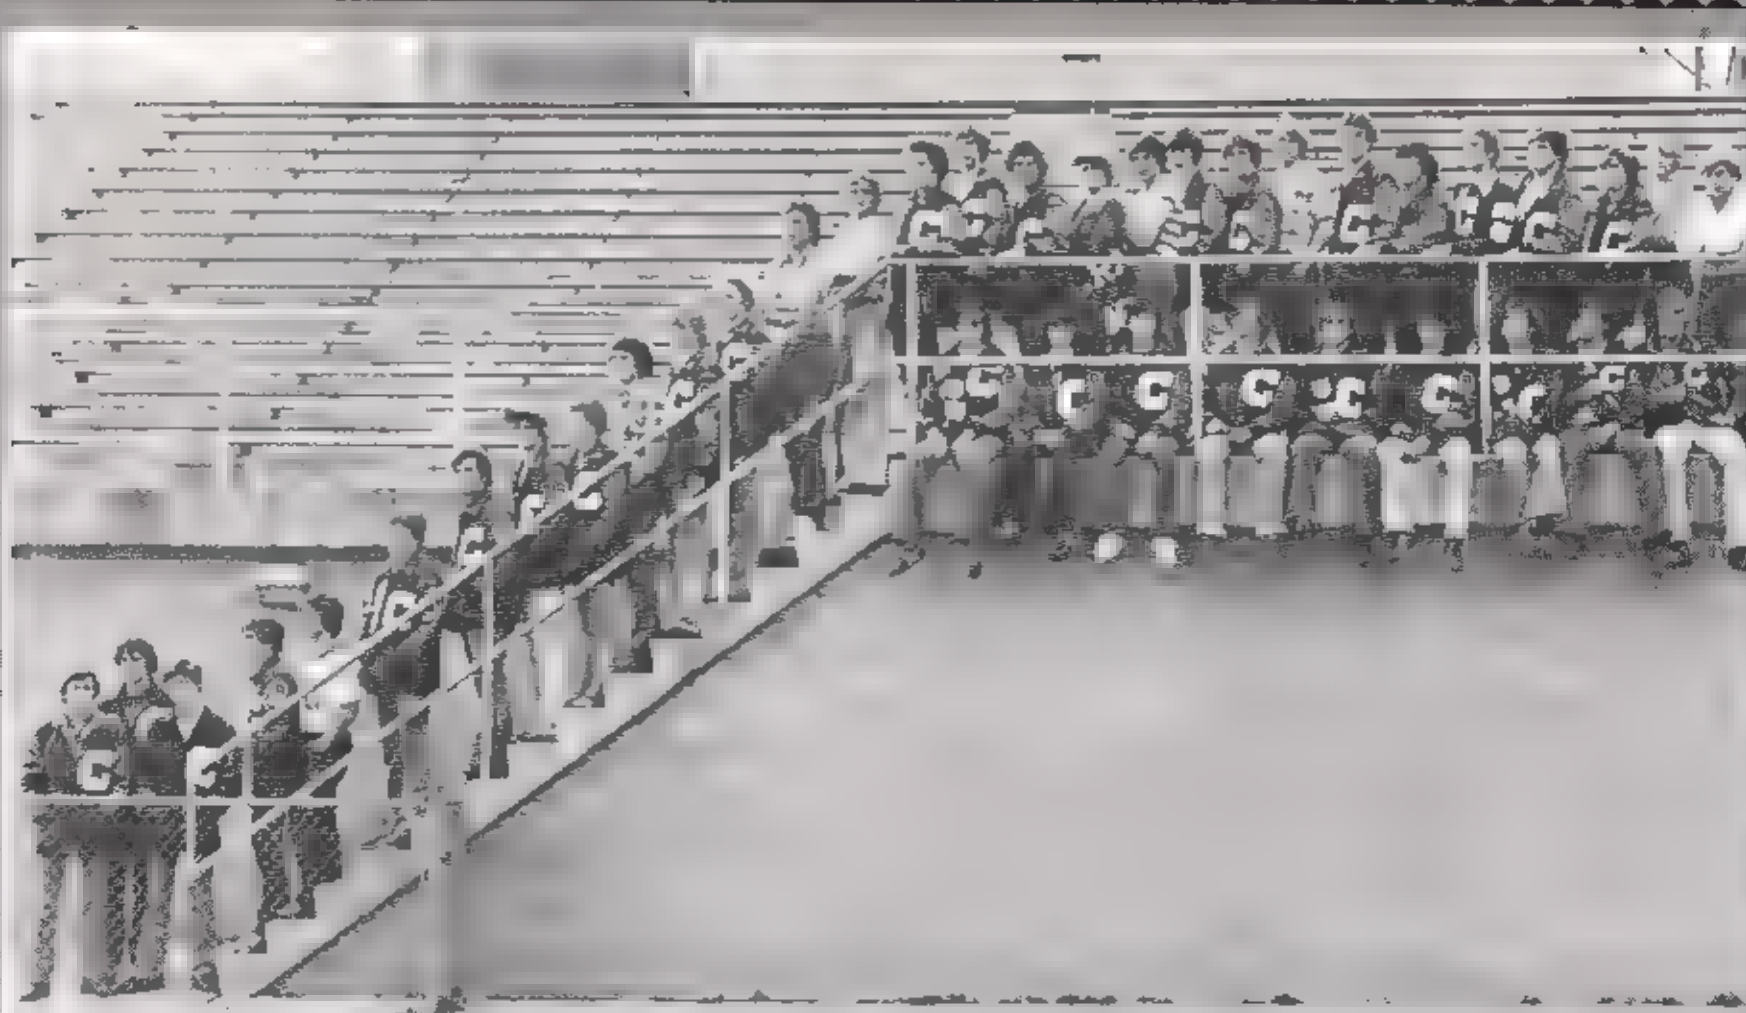

Second semester, Student Council gave rushed, hungry students a break in the morning by setting up a breakfast program in the cafeteria. Milk, fruit, and donuts were sold every morning before first hour. Throughout the year the Student Council operated the school's pop machines.

Athletes show team effort

Lettermen and Girls' Varsity Club members worked together to organize the annual balloon race. Red and white balloons filled the sky at the half-time of the Homecoming game. Together the Lettermen and GVC also engaged in a newspaper and pop bottle drive throughout the community. The proceeds from these projects were used to finance a group banquet held at the end of the year to honor students who excelled in their particular sport or sports.

The Fellowship of Christian Athletes met every Wednesday night in the auxiliary gym.

At the beginning of each meeting, the whole group participated in an athletic activity. Later on in the evening, all were encouraged to participate in a group discussion, the topics were varied and no one's opinion was judged as being right or wrong.

BOOSTER CLUB GOES ALL OUT FOR HOME

Paint, plans, and participation are the key words to remember the Booster Club by this year. The club sponsored the "Autumn Dream" Homecoming dance and painted signs for the games and hallways. They also helped Homecoming parade and spirit week the basketball spirit week.

The week before the sectional basketball games was designed by the Booster Club to promote enthusiasm. It featured a dress-up topic like Day, Hat & Stomp 'em Day and Bugen Day. The lunch hours featured intramural activities like class pyramids, wheel barrow races, and a slave auction.

A mini-float competition was held the last scheduled sophomore game. Teacher-judges chose the sophomore class float as the winner.

The Booster Club also organized a new class collected money and every 5 cents earned the class one link to a chain. The class with the longest chain won points for the spirit week competition between the classes. The money raised from this activity was used to furnish free fan buses to the sectional games.

The winner of the overall spirit week competition was the senior class. Their prize was a disco dance for seniors only.

Squad spurs school spirit

The varsity cheerleaders at CP have the important job of leading the Crazy Crew in cheering on the Bulldog football and basketball teams. What seems to be an easy job really takes a great deal of hard work and time. The varsity squad started practicing for the 1978-79 season in June. Twice a week they met for a few hours to coordinate motions, jumps, and words, thus perfecting their cheers.

The squad worked hard throughout the year promoting spirit, by constructing posters and banners for all the basketball games. They also put on skits at pep assemblies.

To raise money for new varsity jackets the cheerleaders sold flowers and held car washes. The jackets were a new addition to the squad's apparel.

Cheerleaders coach crowd

The junior varsity and freshman cheerleaders were elected in the spring of the 1978 school year.

They received their sweaters and skirts and started practicing in June for the upcoming football season. They spent time practicing for basketball and football games once or twice a week.

The girls also attended cheerleading camps in the summer. They took with them a pom pom, skirt and dance routines for competition in the evenings. The squads worked and received ribbons in these events for their efforts. They spent one fun-packed week learning new cheers and getting acquainted with cheerleaders from other areas.

The squads helped cheer for the CPHS varsity football and basketball homecoming games. They also cheered at all the pep assemblies to help promote school spirit.

Organizations get new look

The marching band which was renamed as the Royal Regiment is now directed by Mrs. Peggy Shaffer. Because of this change of directors, the Royal Regiment did not have the opportunity to compete in any contests that were held during the summer.

The band, besides acquiring a new name, also bought new uniforms, with the help from many donations and the sale of fruit.

Another change was the Color Guard's separation from the marching band. During the year they also competed in a contest sponsored by East Hancock High School and placed fifth.

CPettes are a brand new group organized this year. They practiced long hours for their debut at the homecoming assembly and later performed during halftime that night.

CPettes choreographed their dance routines to popular songs such as "September" by Earth, Wind, and Fire, and ended the year by participating in a contest at Lawrence Central High School. They walked away proudly with the second place trophy in their division.

Mrs. Peggy Shaffer, the new band director, (top right) watched the pep band at the homecoming assembly. The pep band played at both assemblies and basketball games throughout the year.

Bands win superior ratings

The orchestra in its second year of existence won many awards. At NISBOVA, orchestra members received superior ratings in their respective categories.

The orchestra also held a Christmas Concert in December and provided music for the musical "Paint Your Wagon."

The concert and symphony bands participated in NISBOVA on April 29 and had their annual spring concert on April 23 in the school's auditorium.

The jazz band participated in festivals at Indiana State and Ball State and went to contests at Elmhurst High School in Indiana and Vigo at Terre Haute in April.

Besides band awards there were also many individual achievements.

Laura VerMeulen played in the National Indian Band and was first alternate in the All-State Band.

Tom Reed played in the 4-H All-State Band and together with Margaret Treadway played in the All-State Band.

Choirs sing at civic clubs

Sixteen choir members were chosen in September to become members of the Swing Choir. The Swing Choir entered contests and performed at many civic clubs during the year. According to Mr. Michael Wade, CPHS choral director, the Swing Choir's purpose is to give its members experience in performing in front of an audience.

Choir students who wanted to be in the A Cappella Choir, a select group of choir students, began auditioning the previous year. Like the Swing Choir, the A Cappella choir performed at civic ceremonies such as the Memorial Day services, which were held on the courthouse square. In addition the A Cappella Choir gave four concerts at CPHS.

During December the Madrigal Singers held the annual Christmas dinners. They recreated a sixteenth century atmosphere using decorations, costumes, various foods, and music of that period.

The choral department raised funds by selling tickets to concerts, the Madrigal Dinners, and the musicals.

STAGE CRAFT CLUB, CHORALEERS, CHORALAIRES

Drama clubs produce shows

The Choraleers, boys' choir, and the Chorala res, girls' choir, met third and sixth hours with director Mr. Michael S. Wade. The two choirs each participated in the Fall Choral Preview, the Christmas Concert, and the Spring Concert. Individuals from both groups competed in the NISBOVA Solo and Ensemble contest and the two separate choirs also competed as a whole in the NISBOVA contest.

The Drama Company, Thespian Society, and Stage Craft Club all worked together to produce three plays at Crown Point this year. The Drama Company is composed of students interested in drama. The Thespian Society requires that all students earn ten points before being initiated into the society. The Stage Craft Club is made up of students interested in the technical side of the theater

Year features unusual shows

Lights, makeup, costumes and sets combined with actors, technicians and directors to present CPHS with two unusual drama productions this year.

The first show, Stop the World—I Want To Get Off, featured a lot of pantomime. This was a first for most of the cast.

The second show, Wait Until Dark, was a suspense thriller. The plot called for exact timing to create a frightening atmosphere with blackout, screeching tire and knife-throwing effects.

The cast and crews of both shows, under the direction of Mr. and Mrs. Roger Hughes, worked long hours preparing the difficult shows for their appreciative audiences.

Team effort sparks musical

This year's musical performed by the drama department was Paint Your Wagon.

The show was to open on Saturday, March 3, but was delayed to Saturday, March 10, because of the snow.

Setting of the play was the California Gold Rush of the 1850's. The musical follows the story of a town called Rumson town, from its founding, to its peak and eventually to its down fall as a mining town.

The story begins as Ben Rumson (Bob Ledzius) and his daughter Jennifer (Kathy Segert) along with some miners are burying a friend. This man was killed in a fire while he was drunk. Gold was discovered on his grave site. Soon miners from all over the country moved to Rumson town to stake their claims.

Producer and vocal director was Mr. Michael Wade. Dramatic direction was a team effort of Mr. Roger Hughes, Mrs. Debbie Hughes, and Mr. Michael Wade. Mr. James Deal provided orchestra direction, and Mr. Roger Hughes was also the technical director.

Seniors excel in Academics

These outstanding seniors have received credit for their four years of hard work at the high school on the basis of service, character, and scholarship. They have been recognized for their extracurricular work as well as their scholastic achievements.

Members of the National Honor Society included students who maintained a "B" average throughout their high school years. They are selected by the entire faculty.

Students inducted into the Junior Rotarian and Junior Kiwanian Clubs were sponsored by these community organizations. Each month, two students were chosen by the different groups. They were invited to a meeting of the individual organization to make a presentation on the sport or club in which they participated.

Girls' and Boys' State candidates who chose to participate in the activities offered down state showed their interest by submitting an application. They were then interviewed by the faculty who made their selection with the emphasis on government.

Biology Club tapes reports

Although the Biology Club's main objective is advancing scientific knowledge, the social aspects are not overlooked. The advanced biology students, under the sponsorship of Mr. Charles Bowman and Mr. Darwin Kinney, worked to complete projects and experiments on laboratory animals. The chief project for this year was a long-term research report. Each individual completed a booklet accompanied by a cassette on a subject pertaining to biology.

The club also took several field trips to get an in-depth look at various factors of the biological field.

Club officers for the year were president, Jim Kacedan; vice-president, John Kmetz; secretary, Alison Shafer; treasurer, Dan Plesac.

Latin Club builds catapult to enter in JLC competition

The Latin Club started off the year with activities with a get-acquainted night at which students were invited for a swim and hot dog roast. Other activities included a Halloween Party with a pumpkin carving contest, a field trip to the Pompeii exhibit, and a night of Christmas caroling in the neighborhoods of Crown Point.

The Latin Club produced its own dramatic production, Justitia Omnibus, and held the Saturnalia, and banquet honoring seniors, both past and present members of the club. The Saturnalia was served in a traditional Roman manner with traditional Roman food.

Members of the Latin Club erected an immense catapult weighing approximately a ton which they entered in the Junior Classical League Convention. Other students competed in various events in three basic categories: mini-olympics, academics, and art.

Funds for the year were raised by sales and club dues of one dollar per semester. To attend the JLC, students had to finance themselves.

Officers for the year were: pro-councils, Tracy Blanco and Pam Rzepka; vice-president, Tim Tobias; secretary, Rhonda Whelan; treasurer, Teddi Joyce.

Latin Club members, Roger Fuchs and Todd Anderson (top left) worked many months to complete the catapult which was entered in the JLC.

Think Snow

The Ski Club's highlight of the year was its trip to Winter Park, Colorado. Forty members of the club flew to Colorado over spring break and spent a week skiing and enjoying themselves on the slopes of Winter Park.

The Ski Club also took many weekend and day trips to Cannonsburg, Wilmot, Crystal Mountain, and Alpine Valley.

The Club started raising money early by sponsoring car washes during the summer.

All the help from Mrs. Delene Keddington, Mrs. Ruth King, and other members of the club in planning and organizing the trips paid off in the end to make the club's second winter skiing season a great success.

ART CLUB

Club holds Halloween dance

The Art Club started the 1978-79 school year off by sponsoring a disco dance for Halloween. All who came were wearing costumes varying from witches and lions, to belly dancers and clowns. Friends also came as Siamese twins and Raggedy Ann and Andy. A contest was held and the costumes were judged on the basis of originality. The winner, a guy who masqueraded as a girl, received prize money of ten dollars. The proceeds from this dance helped to swell the club's treasury.

Another activity of the club consisted of spending a day in the "windy city" of Chicago visiting the Pompeii exhibit. At this exhibit, findings from the ancient city of Pompeii were displayed. After viewing the exhibit, the group went to dinner at Miller's, a Greek Italian restaurant.

Due to lack of participation by the members the club did not plan any further activities.

Club gathers prize recipes

The Women of Tomorrow Club enjoyed a very active year. Under the sponsorship of Miss Barbara Dunklau and Miss Elaine Grenard, the nineteen members organized numerous fund raising projects for the benefit of the elderly and the underprivileged.

The girls sold candy and candles and published their own cookbook for which they brought in their favorite recipes.

Club members constructed checker boards, wreaths, and flower arrangements to give to the elderly as Christmas gifts.

The club met every other Thursday to plan projects and activities, such as a pizza party and a picnic.

Clubs have industrious year

The Health Careers Club merged with the Volunteers for the Handicapped and is now known simply as the Health Careers Club.

The purpose of the club is to inform students about various careers in the health field.

Members of the club participate in many civic services, such as organizing a roller skating party for mentally retarded children. Other activities include visiting the elderly, participating in a blood drive, and touring Broadway Methodist Hospital. The tours included visiting patients' wards and several of the many departments.

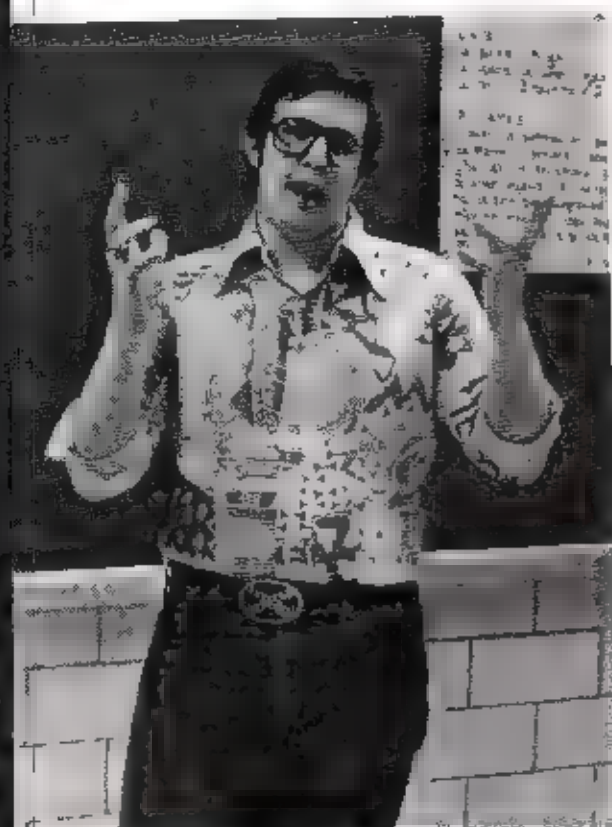

Sponsors for the club were Mr. Hal Oppenhuis, Mrs. Janice Austgen, and Mrs. Rita McFadden. Club officers were Becky Owen, president; Debbie Wilson, vice-president, Judy Oneschak, secretary; and Debbie Burk, treasurer.

The Speech and Debate Club, a small but active organization, was coached by Mrs. Sandra Henry and Mr. Eric Witherspoon.

The Club met October through March and competed with other schools in North Western Indiana. Competitions included categories such as original oratory and broadcasting. Members of the club also read the morning announcements.

Club officers were Bob Radinski, president; Greg Lambert, vice-president; Charlie Mangan, treasurer; and Donna Koscica, secretary.

Students lend a hand

Many students throughout the school year volunteered their services to help the administrators and secretaries with various jobs.

When teachers had trouble with audio and visual equipment, the A-V Aides went to rescue them. They also helped in using and caring for the equipment.

Students who had problems finding books went to library aides for help. Aides were spotted checking out books, collecting fines, and getting magazines.

Students stiffened when Guidance Office Aides came to summon them from classes to see their counselors, not knowing whether it was routine business or if they were caught in violation of school policy.

Attendance Office Aides wrote tardy slips, passes, and passports which were signed by the administrators to hasten routine attendance procedures.

Mr. Shrader's Aides haven't had much recognition in the past two years. Their basic job is to help the principal and assistant principals to find and to get students for them to see. These aides also helped with attendance and tardies and generally helped in keeping the office running smoothly.

Banquet honors Journalists

Windfall magazine reorganized itself this year. Major changes included dividing the staff into groups so that everyone could work on his or her speciality and sponsoring a contest to obtain photography, art work, and short stories.

Due to lack of funds only one edition of Windfall was published this year. However, the staff began raising money for next year's publication by selling M & M's and by having patrons sponsor the magazine.

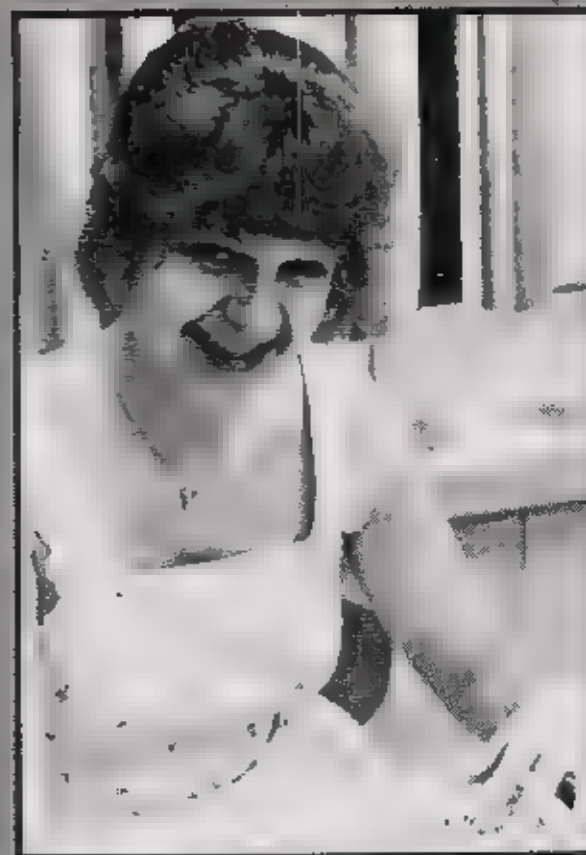

Windfall's advisor was Mrs. Ruth Kernagis. Risha Marek was editor and John Kmetz was assistant editor.

Quill and Scroll, an international journalism society for students, inducted three new members this year. Pledging to promote good journalism were Anthony Anderson, Mary Jo Schweitzer, and Jim Russo. Only students who have made a remarkable contribution to the publications and are in the top third of their class are recommended for membership.

During the Publications Banquet which honors staff members, Vickie Carpenter and Barb Toman were presented with Superstar Awards. Superstar Awards are given to seniors for outstanding work on one or more publications for two or more years.

Anthony Anderson received a scholarship to the Summer Newspaper Institute at Indiana University. A single red rose was given to Meg Golden for her efforts in selling carnations and for her contribution in organizing the Turnabout dance. Numerous other awards were given to other members of the publications staffs.

Inklings printed biweekly

Inklings underwent several radical changes to update and improve the newspaper.

The major change was that the staff published an eight page biweekly instead of a four page weekly. The new format allowed the staff to expand its coverage and concentrate on features.

Two pages of news, two pages of sports, an opinion page, a feature page, and an in-depth spread were included in each issue.

The spread gave the staff an opportunity to explore several angles of topics both inside and outside the school. These topics included growing up in the '70s, the occult, vandalism, and prom.

Picture spreads on Homecoming, Christmas, Basketball, Spirit Week, and a re-cap of the school year were also run.

In addition, Inklings underwent a major face-lift to create a more graphic, professional newspaper.

For the first time since 1973, the Inklings was printed on newsprint.

Graphic datelines added a bold touch to the top of each page. Format art and cartoons were also used to dress up the pages, especially the spread.

The school year began, as always, a month early as a small staff rushed to put out an issue for the first day of school.

The staff held its annual Turnabout Dance, Valentine Carnation Sale, and Spring Publication's Banquet, and all were successful.

Advertising breaks record

VISIONS OF OUR OWN was an easy yearbook to put together because of a large and eager staff.

Miss Britton, yearbook advisor, began recruiting students early last year so by the time the actual work began there were over thirty-six students enrolled in the sixth hour class.

The staff faced a record breaking snowfall which delayed the first deadline twice.

The staff gave the Excalibur a new look this year with the use of graphic art and more line graphics than ever before.

The advertising section worked long hours tramping around to local businesses selling yearbook ads and patron notices. Their hard work paid off as the final total of yearbook ads reached a record-breaking mark.

Netmen post 8-5 season match record

The boy's tennis team completed its second year under Coach Tom May with an 8-5 record and a third place tie in the Lake Suburban Conference. The squad opened the season with three victories, including a conference win over Grift 4-1. The team then lost two straight to Calumet and Portage, with Portage possessing two of the top singles players in the state. The Bulldogs then fell to 2-3 in the conference with a victory over Lowell and defeats to highly touted Highland and Munster. The team closed its season with a 3-2 upset win over Lake Central, leaving them with a 3-3 conference mark. In sectionals, however, the Bulldogs were shutout at the hands of Highland.

This year's singles players were Junior Jim Kiefer, first singles; and Senior Mike Reis and Juniors Doug Luers and Scott Wilber, rotating at 2nd and 3rd singles. The doubles teams consisted of Juniors Dave Johnson and Rick Schach, Juniors Ken Akey and John McMichael, and Junior Dave Lappin and Sophomore Mike Petro. Members of the junior varsity team were Jeff Gilrowski and Bill Lewis.

The boy's cross country team completed its season with a 10-0 dual meet record and a sixth consecutive first place finish in the Lake Suburban Conference Meet. The team also placed second, Rebel Invitational, second, Highland Invitational; and sixteenth, Illiana Invitational.

In the L.S.C. meet the Bulldogs easily outdistanced Griffith 31-57 while placing Sophomores Tom d'Ambrosio and Curt Stewart and Juniors Greg Lambert and Mickey Thompson to the all-conference team.

In sectional competition the C.P. team placed second to Hammond as Lambert placed second.

The Bulldogs fell one place shy of qualifying the team for the state meet with a fifth place showing in regionals. However Stewart and Lambert did qualify with seventh and eighth place finishes respectively.

At the state meet Lambert and Stewart placed twenty-third and twenty-fifth respectively with both being named to the all-state team.

Team takes third place at state meet

The girl's cross country team finished its fourth season with a 5-6 record. According to Coach Don Kyes, the times turned in were better than ever, but the record was poorer because of the improvement of other teams.

This year witnessed the first state meet held in Indiana. Out of fifteen complete teams, Crown Point placed third with a score of eighty nine, four points behind second place.

Lisa James placed seventh over all with a time of 11.22, thirty-two seconds behind the winner. Other finishers, were Lisa Ruffing, twentieth, Dawn Handley, thirty seventh, and Kathy Petrovich, thirty-ninth.

This year's team was a young one made up mostly of sophomores and freshmen with Tammy Hein, the only senior on the team. Because of this, Coach Kyes expects good things from the team next year.

Team finishes year under Coach Hawkins

The Varsity Volleyball team ended its first season headed by Coach Carla Hawkins with a 4-15 record. According to Assistant Coach Victoria Stucky, the competition was better than she anticipated. She also said that competition will be tougher next year because this year they played against many young teams. Crown Point's team itself was a young team with only two returning lettermen, Seniors Janet Hortyk and Sue Cowan.

The team was defeated in the first round of sectionals by a tough Calumet team. In the three games of the match, Calumet won the first and last, while Crown Point won the second.

The J.V. team was more triumphant than the varsity team with a record of 11-8. The outstanding players on the J.V. team were freshmen Donna Kozlowski and Dolores Krieter.

The varsity basketball team ended its first season under Head Coach Jerry King with a 13-9 record and a 4-2 Lake Suburban Conference mark that entitled it to a second place tie with Calumet behind Munster.

In the first round of the Calumet sectional, the Bulldogs avenged a three point regular season defeat and stunned pre sectional favorite and sixteenth ranked Munster 64-42 behind senior center Jeff Pehl's 21 points. In the semifinal round, Crown Point was upset by eventual sectional champ Lake Central 71-62, despite 36 points by Pehl.

Bulldogs named to the all-conference team were Jeff Pehl, first team, and Senior Joe Plesac, Junior Dan Plesac, and Junior John Wilcox honorable mention.

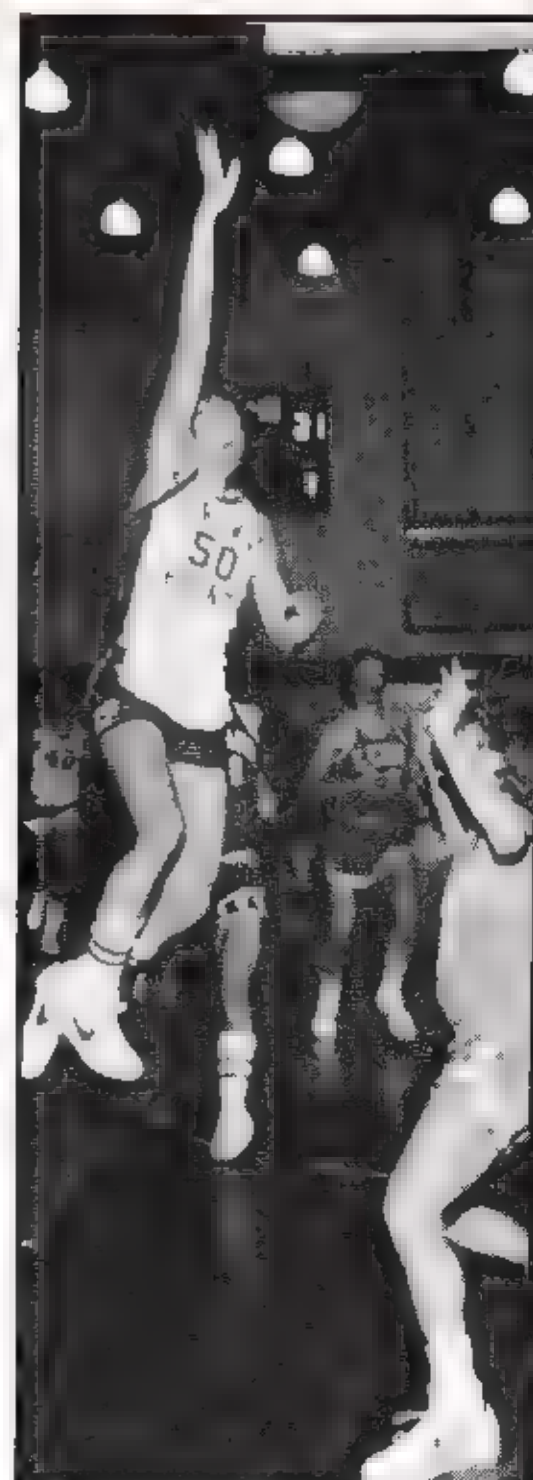

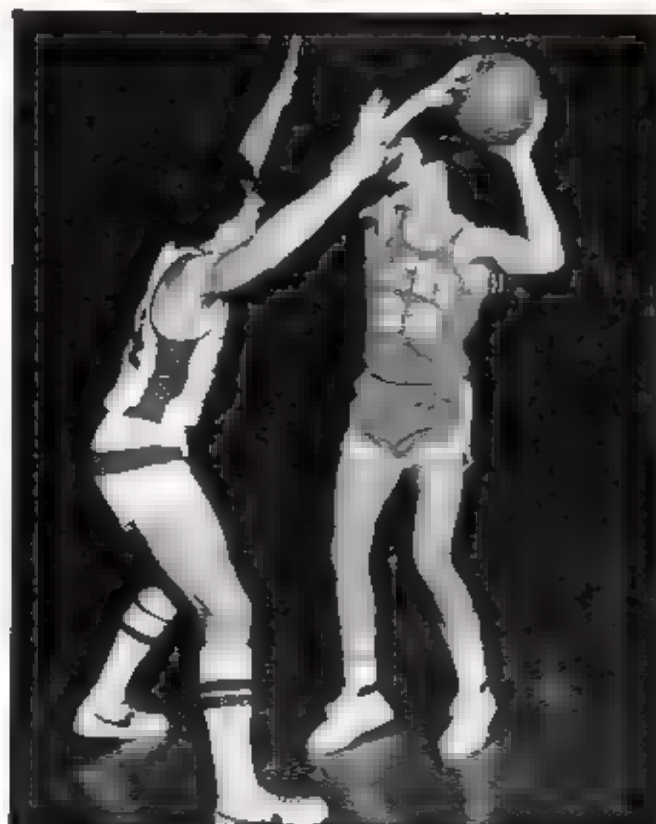

Seniors leaving are Pehl, who was second in the I.S.C. scoring title race with a 16 points per game average, Bill Brown, Steve Kvachkoff, Craig Ligda, and Joe Plesac.

The highlight of the year was a 72-61 overtime victory over rival Munster in which the Bulldogs exploded for 21 points in the extra period. Team leaders were Juniors John Biljan and Keith Roman, who also saw varsity action.

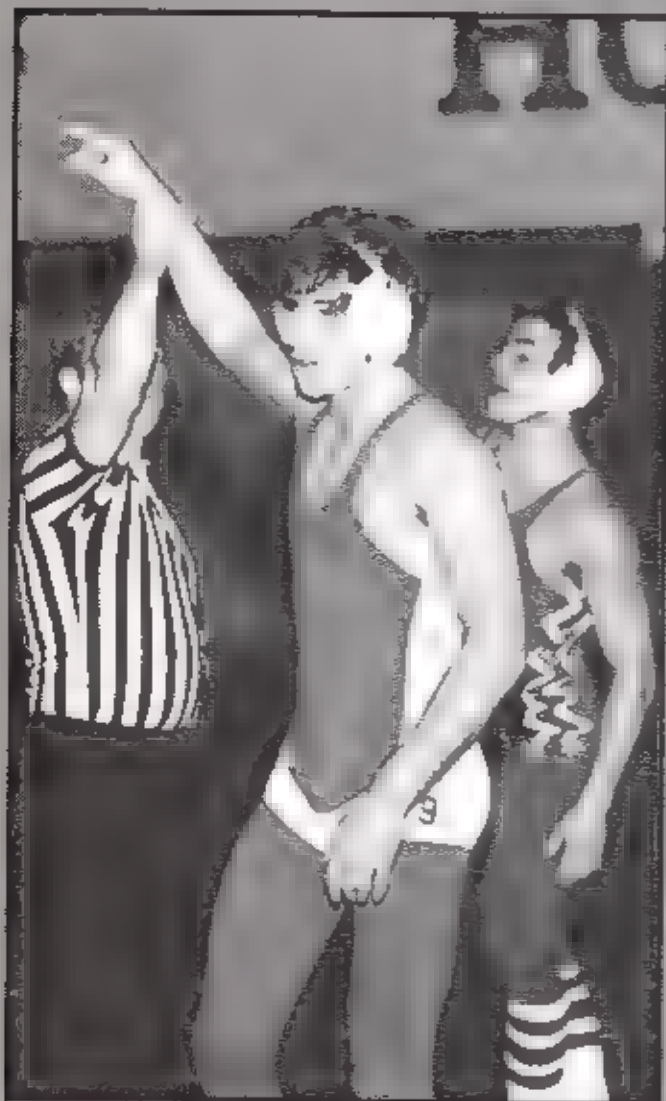

The freshman team, under the direction of Coach Chuck Smoljan, ended its season with 7-10 and 10-5 marks for the "A" and "B" teams respectively. These records, though, were misleading with the "A" team losing four games by three points or less and the "B" team losing three games in overtime. Also, only three games were played at home. Leading scorers were Ed Schmal, "A" team, and Eli Kvachkoff, "B" team.

The team, as a whole, did well at sectionals and the scores turned in were satisfactory. Sandy Blomquist placed third on the vault and advanced to regionals, where she placed seventh in vaulting.

This season's team consisted of four freshmen, four sophomores, three juniors, and one senior. This was the first year for many of the girls. Miss Stucky believes this season gave the team the experience and confidence which will help them next season.

Lambert finishes 6th in State mile

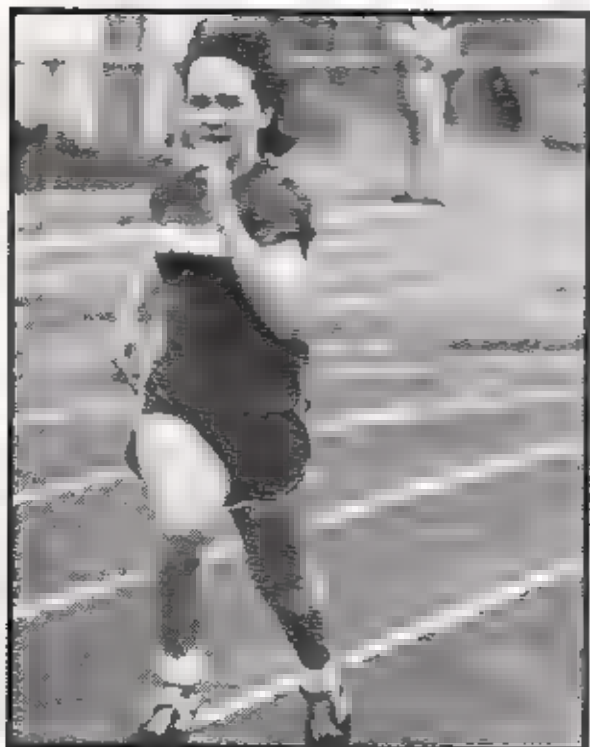

The boy's track team concluded its dual meet season with a very respectable 6-3-1 record under the second year Coach Tony Blake. The team also finished third in the Hobart Little 5 Relays, the Hammond Relays, and the Lake Suburban Conference Meet.

In the Calumet sectional, the Bulldogs qualified for four regional positions in route to a fourth place showing. Qualifiers were Senior Keith Carpenter, pole vault, first, Junior Dan Doty, low hurdles, first and high hurdles, third, and Junior Greg Lambert, mile run, second.

At regionals the same three members qualified for the state meet with the following places: Carpenter, third, Doty, high hurdles, fourth, and Lambert, fourth.

In the state finals at Indianapolis, the lone point scorer for the Bulldogs was Lambert, who repeated last year's performance with a sixth place showing in the mile run.

Girl runners finish with 7-1 record

The girls' track team finished its season with a record of 7-1. The only school the girls lost to was the tough Highland team.

This year Crown Point had two records broken at sectionals. Jane McConnell broke her own sectional record for the low hurdles with a time of 11.0, while Lisa James set a new sectional mile mark of 5:24.53. This broke the record previously set by Lisa Kayes in 1976.

Other places at sectionals were Mary Westerwelle, who came in fourth in the high jump with a jump of 5 feet 2 inches; and Lisa Ruffing, who placed third in the 880 run while turning in a time of 2:26.15.

This year's team consisted of seventeen juniors, fifteen sophomores, and twenty-four freshmen. Since there are no seniors on the team, the coaches expect a good season next year.

Bulldogs win Crown Point sectional

In the "first" season, the baseball team finished 9-10 under Head Coach Dick Webb. Also, the team played to a 6-6 Lake Suburban Conference mark.

However, in the "second" season, or sectionals, the Bulldogs came alive with three shutouts to win their fifth title in eight years under Coach Webb. The assault began with a 13-0 whitewashing of Hanover Central. Then, in the semifinals, the team blanked Lowell 5-0. For the championship, the stickmen thrashed Lake Central 13-0.

In the East Chicago regional, though, the Bulldogs were stymied by Bishop Noll by a 2-1 margin.

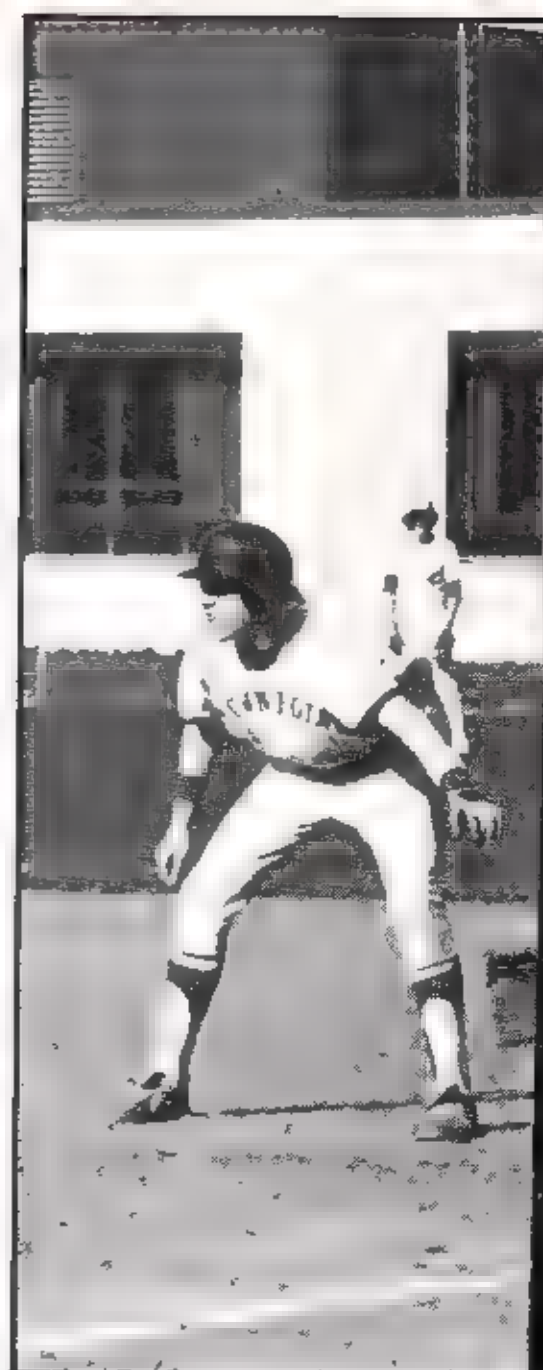

Statistically, the team batted .281 and possessed an E.R.A. of 2.42. Individual leaders were Junior Jim Kiefer with four home runs and Junior Mark Banashak and Kiefer with 17 R.B.I.'s apiece. Senior hurler Joe Plesac owned a 0.97 E.R.A.

Frosh swing to 5-3 mark; JV finish 3-8

The junior varsity baseball team concluded its rain-shortened season under Coach Ed Sherry with a 3-8 record. The jayvees were led by Trent Abell's .300 batting average and Tim Hofferth's eight R.B.I.'s. Bulldogs clearing the fence were Hofferth and Bill Fitter.

The frosh baseball team ended its season with a 5-3 mark under Coach Rick Svihra's guidance. The highlight of the year came when Ed Schmal threw a perfect game. Even though bad weather hampered many practices, the team's strengths were in fielding and hitting. This was evident in the outstanding .292 team batting average. Heading the attack were Bill Murray and Art Samano, who hit at .455 and .435 clips respectively.

In Lake Suburban Conference action, the team placed a close second behind Munster in sectional competition at Pheasant Valley, the Bulldogs placed two strokes in back of champion Valpo and qualified for regionals. Junior Ron Wilson led the way with an 80.

In the LaPorte regional, the Bulldogs fell one place short of qualifying for semi state with a sixth place finish. Low scorer for Crown Point was Junior John McMichael with a 79.

Bulldogs named to the all conference team were McMichael and Wilson. Other members of the squad were Seniors Wes Saylor and Steve Westgate and Juniors Joe Pfister and Mark Willoughby.

'79'ers rally for homecoming

The class of '79 experienced for the first time an ending of a phase of their lives; the close of their high school days. Characteristics of this closing phase was strong interest in school activities, especially during homecoming week.

The class of '79 won in powderpuff football for the second consecutive year in an intense battle with the junior girls. The seniors accumulated the most points during spirit week, capturing the spirit award trophy. These points were won by excelling in such activities as the three-legged race, the tug-of-war, and the swimming relays.

The senior float in the homecoming parade expressed strong Bulldog pride, and the football team, though losing to Highland, showed spirit that made the game an exciting match of strength.

The last homecoming for the class of '79 was one which measured up to the best of CPHS standards and showed all of the spirit that is a tradition.

Career choices face seniors

A look at career preferences in the class of '79 showed that there were differences in what each student was seeking. The classes available supported this variety of interests with courses catering to the student's preferences.

College-bound seniors had advanced courses, such as humanities, pre-calculus, physics, advanced chemistry, and the advanced language courses available to them. These courses trained a student to think logically and to solve complicated problems, skills needed to prepare a student for college.

For students embarking on a business career, two branches of study were offered. First, for the prospective secretary, there were courses such as advanced shorthand and secretarial procedures. Secondly, for those more interested in management, accounting and business management were offered.

While it is not generally recognized, domestic jobs such as maintaining a household, budgeting, child care, and cooking require a considerable amount of skill. Courses such as child development, advanced foods and family living gave budding raisers of future generations a good background for insuring a contented family.

Students with the advantage of artistic ability were able to develop their talents in five arts courses. Drama, advanced art, and band helped to allow each student the time for creative expression.

Industrial Arts is an area of learning that is applicable to the world of the working person. The courses, among which were auto mechanics, electronics, technical drawing, and welding, made for well paying active jobs and a minimum of post high school education.

The senior year of high school is the year during which career decisions should be made. The courses available at CPHS opened many avenues to the class of '79 when they choose their direction in life.

Girls vie for Junior Miss

On December 17, 1978, at 7:30 p.m., a group of students, relatives, and teachers assembled in the CPHS auditorium to witness an annual event at this school: the Crown Point Junior Miss Pageant.

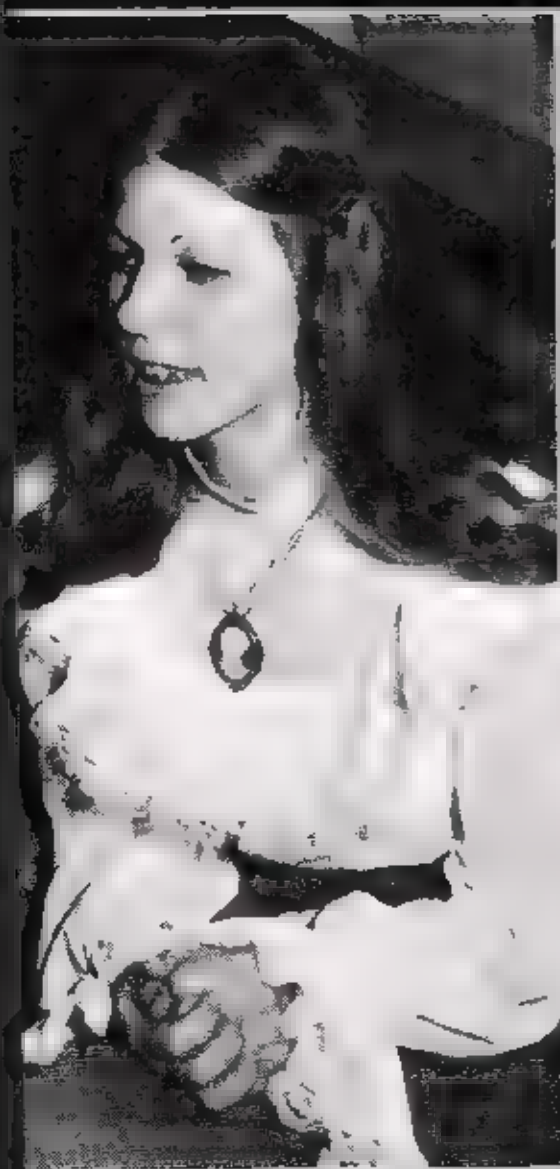

To a bystander the pageant was very similar to any other beauty contest. The judging was in five categories: poise and appearance, scholastic achievement, youth fitness, talent, and judges' interview. The prizes were scholarships and savings bonds, and the contestants were fifteen bright, smiling young ladies.

To the candidates, however, the contest was like no other witnessed before.

They were the ones who had to smile prettily for each photograph. They were the ones who had to be sweet and tactful and convincing for the judges' interview.

Tracy Blanco was voted Miss Congeniality. Lynne Elser was judged the most physically fit, and she was also the second runner up. First runner up Kathy Segert won in the poise and appearance and the scholastic categories. Robin Handiford was judged the most outstanding of the contestants, and became the winner of the 1978 Crown Point Junior Miss Pageant. She was also the winner of the talent competition.

Lynne Elser, second runner-up, (opposite page, bottom) pauses after the contest.

Seniors honored nationwide

When a goal has been set, the next step in the process of events is to follow through and achieve it. The problem is that few can hang on to a worthwhile cause when it comes down to doing the work involved.

In the class of '79 there were six examples of individuals who made sure progress toward their goals. They were the National Merit Finalists Barb Toman, Alice Johns, Mark G. Johnson, Margaret Treadway, Chris Ropa, and Jim Young.

To be a National Merit Finalist one must be ranked in the upper one half of one percent scholastically among the nation's high school seniors. Besides being good scholars, these students are involved in many extra-curricular activities. Mark Johnson, Jim Young, Alice Johns, and Barb Toman belong to the National Honor Society. Other activities include ski club, language clubs, Windfall, Inklings, and swimming.

The class of '79 was unique in that it contained an abundance of finalists; there were six, compared to just one last year. An abundance of hardworking achievers is another aspect of the class of 1979.

The path differs for '79ers

An overall look at the class of '79 yields an array of impressions. Students wrestled daily with the problems of consuming volumes of factual information, doing homework, taking tests, and making grades. The class seemingly glided down an assembly line, picking up bits of knowledge to be forged into a high school diploma. They appeared to be robots, carbon copies of every other senior class in the United States.

"Zooming in" on the class of '79 reveals a wholly different aspect

Instead of a field of blank faces, a group of highly individualistic students is displayed. These individuals made distinctive decisions in choosing their interests: being in the Crazy Crew, trying out for sports, acting in plays, participating in concerts, writing or taking photographs for Inkings, perfecting cars, or partying. These activities were what put meaning into the endless school days and turned them from a blur of boredom into a variety of sharply focused impressions.

PROM

Pleasant Prom finishes year

A large rainbow, sparkling fountain, flower-covered arch, and wishing well helped set the mood for the 1979 Prom. "Always and Forever."

The dance was held at the Serbian Hall in Hobart on Friday, April 27. The evening was the result of hard work by members of the junior class and sponsor Miss Chris Conner.

The band, Freeway, played a variety of fast and slow music for the couples to enjoy.

The menu included beef, roast chicken, mostaccioli, corn, mashed potatoes, salad, bread and chocolate or banana cake.

Romie Vrabely and Steve Westgate were crowned Prom Queen and King at the dance. The other nominees were Melanie Margiotta, Patty Schmal, Kathy Snyder, Bret Botkin, Keith Carpenter, and Jeff Rattray.

Mr. Mike Kolbert, physics teacher, snapped Prom pictures for couples to keep as lasting mementos for the special evening.

Prom was a pleasant way to end the school year for underclassmen and an especially nice way for the seniors to finish their four years at CPHS.

Unique traits rewarded at annual party

As its final fling of the year, the senior class met together at Great Oaks After Four Club for a unique evening of casual fun.

This dance was made unique by the fact that most students did not come with dates. Instead they came in small groups and were then able to mingle instead of being confined to one date.

Two hours of entertainment were provided by Freeway. As dinner was served, Mr. Jay Jones delivered a twenty minute monologue on the antics of the Class of '79 and the CPHS staff.

Twenty-five awards were given to the renowned members of the senior class. Presenting the awards were Sue Cowan and Kathy Snyder. The Rah Rah Award went to Kay Mayden; Spiciest, Stacy Smith; Senior Einstein, Jim Young; Best Dressed, Brent Rosenbower and Jeanne Hanson; Most Likely to Succeed, Jim Kacedan and Julie Middleton; Shortest Fused, Randy Sowder; Biggest Nose, Ron Petrovich; Big Foot, Jeff Pehl; Crudest and Rudest, Bill Morrow; Most Likely To Be Arrested, Bill Morrow; Unluckiest, Steve Kvachkoff; Best Personality, Jane Zdanowicz; Susy Homemaker, Barb Hill; Mr. Goodwrench, Al Trump; Con Artist, Jim Lewis; Ditcher, Cheryl Finley; Best Mannered, Gail Cox; Brown Noser, Mary Kay Thanos; Oddest Laugh, Kathy Snyder; Accident Prone, Jeff Rattray; Wild and Crazy, Kevin Cornwell and Mary Ellen Kennedy; and Best Party Organizer, Marty Zurbriggen.

Class of '79 graduates in two programs

As in the past there were two graduation ceremonies this year. Part of the class graduated in January and the rest in May.

The January graduation was postponed and rescheduled several times due to large snowfalls.

Sue Cowan presented the class welcome for both the January and the May commencement programs.

The January commencement address was presented by Mr. Thomas Farrgle, public relations director at Gary Works, United States Steel Corporation. Student Melissa Davis presented the invocation and Jacquetta Johnson presented the benediction.

At the May graduation, Valedictorian Julie Middleton delivered the invocation, and Valedictorian Lori Rohwedder delivered the benediction. Valedictorians Barb Toman and Jean Wagonblast presented the valedictorian message "Our Youth Is Our Hope."

Juniors' float is victorious

With the start of a new school year the junior class found themselves wrestling with new obstacles. Despite the heavy work schedule, most took time out for the Homecoming Festivities. The juniors started the week off by wearing blue, their class color. They also participated in the swimming relay and three-legged race and other activities.

In the annual powder puff game the effort and hard work of the "Jaw Breakin' Juniors" wasn't enough to conquer the seniors. After a long, hard battle, the seniors defeated the juniors by a two-point victory.

The hours that were spent working on this year's float paid off. The juniors were speechless when they won first place for the best float. This year's theme was "Whip Those Trojans."

The week's excitement came to a close with the selecting of a class princess. The junior class chose Carol Niepokoj as their princess.

Juniors plan for college

This year juniors realized that time was valuable. On some occasions leisure activities had to be set aside for studying and jobs. Many juniors found jobs at such places as Southlake Mall, in fast-food chains, and at local stores. Others worked towards winning scholastic and athletic scholarships.

Most juniors started thinking more about college. One step towards college preparation was taking the PSAT.

During the long three hour struggle with the exam, many juniors found the PSAT to be more strenuous than they expected.

Juniors realized that attaining the desired SAT scores in their senior year would require considerable preparation.

Concession stand funds finance prom

A common sight on Friday nights is seeing half of a junior's body above the concession stand counter. Juniors operate the concession stand for indoor and outdoor sports. Skills necessary for working at the concession include knowing how to count money well enough to give the correct change, how to make good coffee, how to operate the coke machine, how to work under the pressure of a half-time rush, and a fair amount of spirit and effort. The concession stand workers are gathered completely on a volunteer basis. Mr. Kowalski, junior class sponsor, manages the concession stand.

The concession stand is the main source of funds for the prom.

SOPHOMORES

The sophomores returned to Crown Point High School in the fall with a confident feeling. Unlike their freshman year they were more acquainted with people and the routine of the high school. They no longer had the same scary feeling walking through the now familiar halls.

Many of the classes for sophomores were more challenging than their freshman courses. In typing classes they learned a better way to type than the "hunt and peck system." In addition to typing manuscripts and letters, they took many timed writings. Keeping fit was taught in health classes. Sophomores also participated in field trips to the Health Clinic, the Lake County Special Ed Center and divorce court.

In geometry sophomores struggled with what seemed like a thousand theorems and postulates and how to figure proofs while in English they found that grammar and writing were an ongoing battle sweetened with a more liberal dose of literature than the freshman year offered. The class of '81 had new and difficult experiences with their courses, but they gained a lot from them.

Tests present new challenges

The sophomore students this year were required to take one full day of testing. They entered the auditorium armed with two sharpened pencils prepared for a six hour day of testing.

The California Test of Basic Skills was one of the two tests given. This test showed the achievement of the students over the years in math, grammar, science, and reference skills. Sophomores found some parts of the tests were a breeze to get through, but other parts even Einstein himself probably couldn't do!

By the time sophomores were ready to take the Short Form Test of Academic Aptitude, it was well into the afternoon and everyone's brain was tired.

The day finally ended, but all the effort was worth while because the tests showed the potential of the students.

Sophs develop school spirit

As sophomores, the class of '81 was prepared to compete with the upper classmen in Homecoming activities. A handful of sophomores worked on a float at Peggy Wein's house after school each night for about a week.

The biggest problem was storing a huge float so the morning dew wouldn't ruin it. The paint ran, but the kids were ready to remedy that situation and were able to repaint the float.

The slogan for their float was "C.P. on Target." Bob Bortoli rode on it, shooting an arrow through the goals to a target.

The sophomores chose Lisa James to represent their class as its homecoming princess. Although they cheered their team on, they were defeated by Highland.

Frosh tackle a new start

As August drew to a close, a group of young strangers walked through the doors of Crown Point High School to become the class of '82.

The first few days of school lost freshmen with maps of the school in their hands asking teachers how to get to their new classes were a common sight.

Early in the school year, the freshmen had to elect class officers. For ninth graders from Taft, this was a simple task, but newcomers to the school found voting challenging, if not impossible.

As the months progressed, the freshmen made friends with many upper classmen and no longer needed help getting places. School became a comfortable and familiar place.

Class of '82' shows spirit

For spirit week activities, the class of '82 put their thoughts and hard work together to build a float entitled "Bulldogs Come Out On Top." Even though it didn't win best float, the freshmen showed what they were able to do.

Many freshmen participated in spirit week dress up days and in the challenge of the classes during lunch hours.

As the months rolled by, the freshmen got to know each other better. This familiarity made it easier for freshman girls to invite a guy to Turnabout.

Freshmen found it easiest of all to get together with their friends after a football or basketball game and join the fun at the disco dances held in the auxiliary gym by the Student Council.

Freshmen try something new

As the year progressed, freshmen began to fit in more easily with upper-classmen and teachers. Many freshmen joined choir, band, drama, publications, and sports. Freshmen also found that by joining these organizations they met many different students and made many new friends.

Freshmen began to attend frosh games to help cheer the freshman teams to victory. The brave freshmen went to the varsity games and joined in cheering with the rowdy crazy crew.

By the end of the year, freshmen were aware of the activities held at the high school and they were looking forward to the experiences of their sophomore year.

ADMINISTRATION AND FACULTY

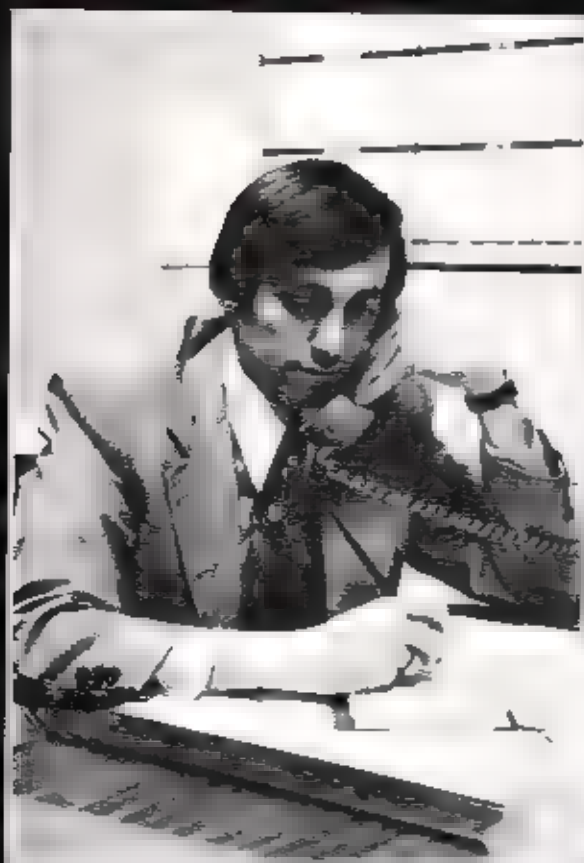

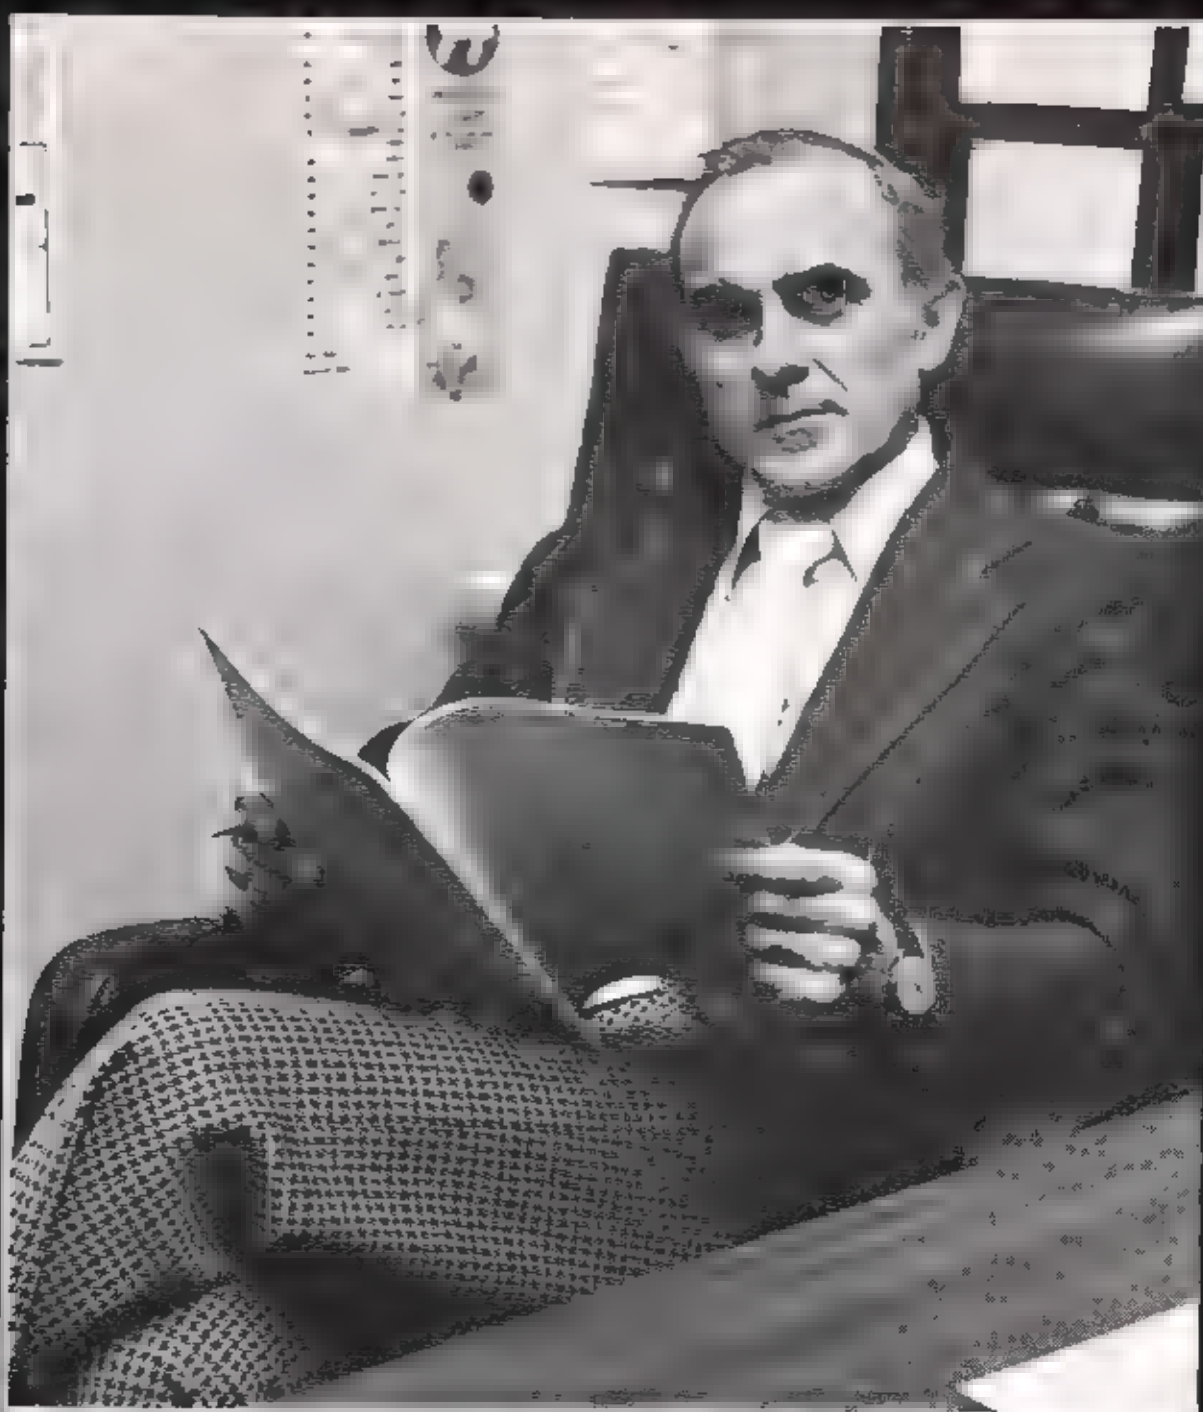

New decisions affect CPHS

Mr. Georgas and the assistant principals, aside from many routine duties, made many decisions this year that influenced CPHS greatly.

Affecting the senior graduation was Mr. Georgas' decision to allow the class to have rentable caps and gowns. Prior to this decision the senior class almost received retainables but after an Inking's poll indicating senior preference, Mr. Georgas switched the order.

After "Blizzard '79" snow piled up in school parking lots reducing parking space, Mr. Georgas along with Mr. Brist urged students not to drive to school. Soon stricter measures were taken and only specified students were allowed to park in lots.

In early March when animosity ran deep between factions a week of tension and unrest resulted. Through the efforts of administrators and teachers and the cooperation of students the problems were resolved. School discipline was tightened in general when a long-planned drug search was conducted by canine units on a Friday in March.

Mr. Paul Georgas, principal, (above right) attended Indiana University and earned a master's degree there.

Mr. Kenneth Brist, assistant principal, (left) attended Indiana State University and earned a Master's degree. He is also Student Council co-sponsor.

Mr. Indalecio Ruiz, assistant principal and athletic director (left) attended Indiana State University where he earned a master's degree.

Mr. Larry Shrader, assistant principal (above), earned his master's degree at Ball State.

Ray Rogers (top left) served as superintendent of Crown Point Schools for the past five years.

Gerald Novak, assistant superintendent, (top right) writes up a report.

The Crown Point Community School Board (middle) consists of Mr. Gerald Novak, assistant superintendent, Mr. John Sorbello, president, Mr. Gerald H. Keddington, Mr. Terry Murphy, Mr. Byron J. Hubbard, and Mr. Leslie M. Milby.

Mr. George Antal (above) is the buildings and grounds' superintendent.

Mr. William Naylor (right) is in charge of business affairs for the school corporation.

Rogers starts anew after 19 year's service

The school board spent much of this year immersed in teacher negotiations. When these negotiations over a salary increase failed to reach a settlement, teachers picketed on sub-zero day in January. Later in the month a one-day teacher sick-in was held when negotiations reached a stalemate. Agreement was reached soon after this.

The school board voted not to renew the contract of Mr. Ray Rogers and in January began the search for a new superintendent. Mr. Rogers spent nineteen years working in the Crown Point school system. His first years were spent here at CPHS as assistant principal and then as principal. Later he became assistant superintendent and his last five years were spent as superintendent. In this position Mr. Rogers' greatest contribution was keeping the schools out of debt. Mr. Rogers left the area to become superintendent of North Adams Community School Corporation in Decatur.

Arena assists in scheduling

First semester scheduling went very smoothly, but chaos was the appropriate word for the beginning of second semester. Whether student mistakes or computer errors contributed to the problem, many students gazed at their schedules with puzzled expressions. With approximately 300-400 students involved, the guidance counselors did their best to solve the problem. It was almost like arena scheduling all over again, since counselors spent 300 man hours correcting the problem.

Offered this year as in previous years was an exchange with Gary Vocational School. Students were able to spend half a day at the school learning skills such as carpentry, data processing, and marketing research.

New equipment to aid in A-V

A V received 2 new video tape machines this year. The video tapes are used extensively for plays, sports, and speeches. A laminator, also new this year, was favored by the teachers, who with the help of Mrs. Vicki Littiken, covered assorted papers and posters with plastic.

To encourage the use of the library, paperback books of fiction were grouped for easy finding under such labels as romantic novels and favorite books. Vertical pamphlet and map files were built up with materials other than books. Mirrors were installed for easier supervision.

Ready workers aid in offices

The unsung workers of CPHS, who do jobs that help to keep our school running smoothly are the secretaries. The jobs included everything from helping visitors or answering phone to typing or filing, but the jobs were not always easy.

Greeted by Mrs. Francie Kaiser, receptionist, a visitor could see the many secretaries at work in the office. Mrs. Judy Schlueter was responsible for the school's administrative paperwork. Assisting the guidance department was Mrs. Smelia Kairns. Working in attendance was Mrs. Rae Jean Zea. Mrs. Donna

Brown did duplicating work for teachers.

Assisting the various departments in CPHS were Mrs. Ruth Hosking, music department secretary, and Mrs. Jean Kish, athletic department secretary. Assisting in study hall attendance was Mrs. Florence Schiesser. Mrs. Jan Michaelis helped reading teachers by tutoring students individually. In the library and audio-visual departments, Mrs. Dorothy Girouard, Mrs. Ardyce Madsen and Mrs. Patricia Reid assisted with routine duties.

Mrs. Smelia Kairns, guidance secretary, (above) sets up an appointment for Tricia Reid with her counselor.

Yogurt is new in cafe

If you enjoy shakes, the place to be was CPHS' cafeteria during the second semester. Shakes were offered only on certain days of the week which varied week to week with one flavor being served per day, but for 15 cents the shakes proved popular, with about one half of the students choosing milk shakes instead of milk. Also new, but only offered at the cafeteria store, was Dannon yogurt.

During second semester breakfast was served in the cafeteria before school between 7:15 and 7:45 a.m. Donuts, milk, and fruit were served.

Unlike other escalating food prices, lunches in the cafeteria increased this year just five cents. This was the first price increase in five years.

Classes stress basic skills

Reading and 'Riting and 'Rithmetic are the three R's of learning. English is two thirds of that statement. So it is well-justified that at least three years of English is required to graduate from CPHS—three long, hard years of 'Reading and 'Riting."

Freshman English consisted mostly of writing and rewriting and improving grammar and reading skills. One technique used in improving grammar skills, which is also used in second year English, is the packets. These packets are grouped for acceleration and are also geared toward individualized study.

English for sophomores is divided into three sections with the literature section on the spot this year with the addition of new books. The authors included in the book ranged from the wilderness stories of Jack London to a story of the future by Ray Bradbury and D. H. Lawrence's story of a young boy's successful search for more money.

Junior and senior English courses included anything from writers as varied as Camus to Mark Twain. Activities included intellectually challenging discussions of the dialogue of Plato and impromptu dances. A new course, American novels, kept many noses buried in books as students read such novels as Of Mice and Men and The Heart Is a Lonely Hunter.

Special events spark interest

This year's foreign language classes have had many special events. Students listened to tapes and read dialogs together to make sure that stresses and pauses were used correctly. Speeches read aloud in class always turned out to be either interesting or amusing. Aside from sentence corrections and group work, the language classes have had events such as a hayride, bakesale, a French play, and the opportunity to observe the Pompeii exhibit. The latter prompted many questions. Crepes in the French classes and a Spanish breakfast filled the halls with mouthwatering smells. There's no question about it, the foreign language classes are always busy with a multitude of activities.

Math requires concentration

This year the math classes have worked diligently. When the average freshmen enter the high school, they usually start out with algebra and advance to geometry. Some students find that General Math is more suited to them. Other classes taken are Advanced Algebra, Pre Calculus, and Calculus. During their freshman year the students are required to take a general equivalency test to check their knowledge of math. Those who fail are required to take Fundamental Math their Junior year. Some math students attended a contest competing with other schools. This was an interesting challenge. At times math games are used to check knowledge and skill.

Students play stock market

In addition to learning the facts and the "why" of social studies, students played a stock market game in which they bought stocks in fictitious companies with "dittoed" money. Another learning activity was a farming game in which students chose crops to grow in their own make-believe fields, and then measured their profits at the end of the game. These learning projects sometimes spanned days and incorporated actual historical events. The games taught students valuable lessons which would not have been learned just sitting in a chair taking notes. In some classes students studied male and female rolls with various social studies teachers voicing their thoughts about these roles.

SCIENCE

Chem becomes 'a real gas'

Be it paramecium, mercury or battery, a "tix" or exam, science is an unending quest. CPHS' science department tries to fulfill this desire for knowledge that any student may have. The student could be college-bound or just interested in the sciences.

Biology continued to attract students with its various experiments. Observing pond life under a microscope introduced the classes to aquatic creatures such as the paramecium and cyclops. Dissecting of an earthworm, clam, starfish, and a grasshopper are other projects completed during the year.

Six weeks of this year's chemistry classes were, in the words of Mr. Robert Conrad, chemistry teacher, "a real gas." This was true because these weeks were spent on the study of the gaseous state. Some of the experiments included were diffusion and the percentage of oxygen in the air. Another three weeks was spent on the liquid and solid states.

The study of gravity pulls students to physics class, much like opposite poles of magnets are attracted to each other. Photography and the yearly tossing of a cat in the air and watching it land on all fours are aspects of physics that interest students.

The advanced courses of biology and chemistry continued to draw those students who wished to further their scientific knowledge. Field trips of the advanced biology class to such places as Notre Dame to see an electron microscope and the Lobund Lab, where germ-free animals are raised, and the mind-boggling experiments of the advanced chemistry class have proved enlightening.

Courses equip teens for jobs

The chatter of typewriters and the hum of business machines are familiar sounds that emerge from the business hallway.

Typing is taught with a combination of electric and manual typewriters by five different teachers. In other business classes students explored the use of adding machines, dictaphones and copying machines.

General Business, a course primarily for freshmen, drew many students. Freshmen learned budgeting, the workings of life, auto, and medical insurance, and maintaining a bank account.

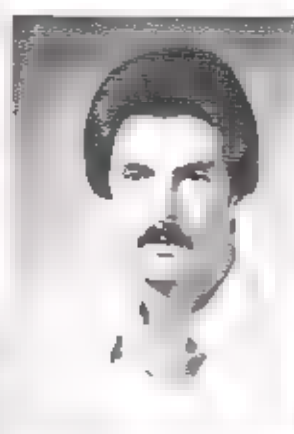

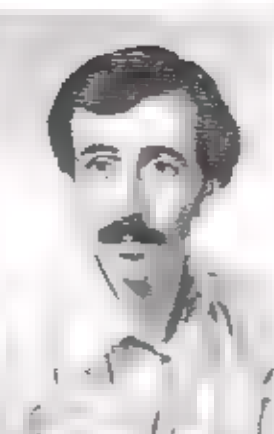

Business Law continued to challenge seniors with actual court cases, the legal proceedings in the law of contracts, and the way American legal system operates.

CPHS is keeping up with the growing number of graduates entering the business world by offering courses such as secretarial procedures and business management.

Interest sparked by variety

This year Industrial Arts was as interesting as it was productive. Machine shop students did prototypes of steam engines and learned how to repair a car's engine.

Students enrolled in greenhouse technology had a hour full of learning about plants and how to raise them. These people also learned how to make terrariums and how to propagate plants.

In horticulture, students learned about landscaping and did a project on how to landscape a house.

Woodshop gave students the knowledge to make stools and corner shelves. Building trades proved a real challenge to any student who had the courage to learn how to build a house but also had the courage to take a three hour course.

This year has been a busy one for the industrial art students, but most agree that it has been very educational.

Field trips bring variety

Home Economics is more than cooking and sewing. Anyone can walk into various Home Economic rooms and find students decorating elaborate cakes, or see toddlers playing games as part of a preschool program. An observer can walk into another room and see students comparing the prices of shampoo and creating a consumer campaign. In still another room someone might find the sewing classes cutting out intricate designs and making clothes.

Home Economics is not just sitting in a classroom either. Frequently, the foods classes visit places like the Sara Lee Bakery, United Airlines' kitchen, and different area restaurants. Clothing students visited the Simplicity Pattern Company and the Weaving Fiber Shop. Personal relation classes paid a visit to the Merrian Little Funeral Home to learn how to handle the details of a funeral.

Art projects offer variety

This year's art classes have done many creative projects ranging from pencil drawings, to pen and ink, to paints. Also included in this year's activities is the Art Contest on the subject "Lake County History" which attracted many participants. Grid drawings, (enlargement of a picture), clay projects with and without a pottery wheel, sculptures, crafts, and self portraits are just a few of this year's achievements. The art classes together offer a broad spectrum of courses.

Mary Bach (right middle) concentrates on her jewelry project

Michele Morrison (middle right) uses a kiln in jewelry class.

Band sports new uniforms

This year the music department started on a different note. With the departure of Mr. Koehler, Mrs. Shaffer and Mr. Deal were left in charge of the band and orchestra. This brought about some different routines in the marching band and some peppier music in the pep band.

The students seemed more enthusiastic this year, too. One reason for this might be the new band uniforms. These uniforms were bought with the money from the band's annual fruit sale. The uniforms lifted the students' spirits and made them proud to be band members. In such contests as the Nisbova Solo and Ensemble Contest, band members worked hard to perfect their skills. The students also took part in more band activities like being in the pep band or playing in the orchestra pit band.

Mr. Kuehner and Ken Floyd (right) discuss the needed improvements.

Tuxes, risers boost morale

The band wasn't the only group to get new things this year in the music department. The choir bought new choral risers and tuxedos. The risers and tuxedos were much needed by the choir to keep up their tradition as striking dressers and excellent singers.

The choir has developed fine voices every year. This year, though, the students put more effort into their work. Anyone could walk into the music department and hear the harmonious voices of the choir coming out of their room's double doors. The annual spring play was a success and gave the choir extra encouragement.

MR. JAMES DEAL—Ball State University, B.S. Band and Instrumental Music Groups.
MRS. PEGGY SHAFFER—Indiana State University, M.S.

MR. MICHAEL WADE—Indiana State University, M.S.; Department Coordinator, A Cappella and Choral Music Groups.

Red Stever (far left) writes music on the blackboard as part of a music theory assignment.

Health offers helpful tips

Health class this year was a favorite among students. Students found themselves looking forward to the class instead of dreading it. One reason for this change might be guests like Mr. Dykel. Mr. Dykel had a laryngectomy several years ago. He talked to the students about cancer and the hazards to smoking. Other guests like the paramedics and a nurse, who talked to the class about birth defects, added variety to the class.

Students also went on the department's annual field trips to the Day Care Center for the Retarded, the divorce court, and the Lake County Health Department.

MRS. JANICE AUSTGEN—Central Michigan University, M.A.; Health Careers Club Sponsor
MR. HAL OPPENHUIS—Purdue University, M.S.; Department Coordinator; Health Careers Club Sponsor

Mrs. Jan Austgen (top, left) shows her health class where the sternum is on the skeleton.

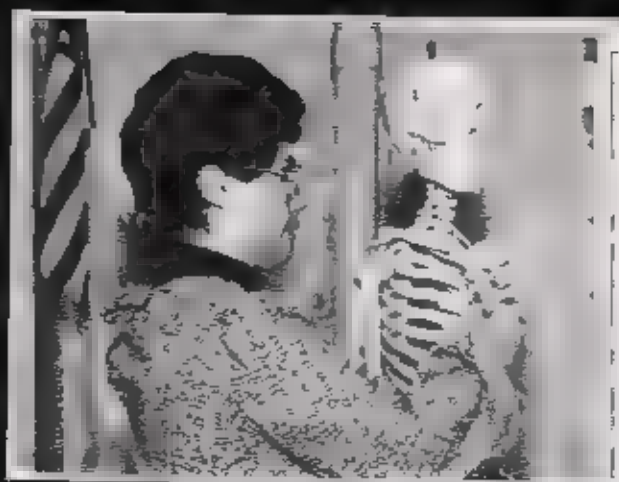

Tammy Hefner (far top, right) practices splinting the lower arm of patient Danny Ayers.

Mrs. Austgen (far right) discusses with her seventh hour class how to stop smoking.

Jackie David (below) pauses from her note taking to hear what her teacher, Mr. Oppenhuus, has to say about the body.

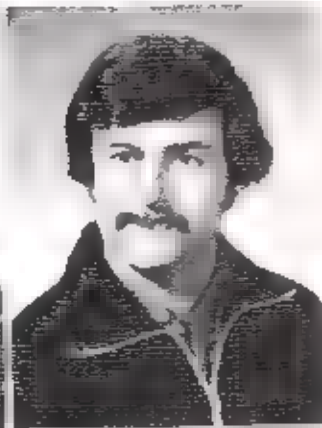

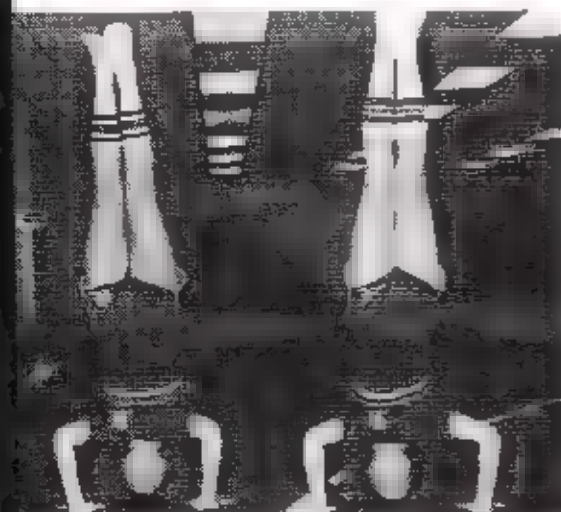

PHYSICAL EDUCATION

New courses add interest

The advanced physical education classes added some new courses this year. Among the new favorites were advanced lifesaving, scuba diving, disco dancing and karate. These courses were taught by professional instructors.

The regular physical education classes suffered no major changes this year. With co-ed classes again, we found girls' wrestling and boys doing cartwheels. There were some complaints about different things in the courses, but most students had a fulfilled and healthy year in physical education.

Leave no picture out—
 Let no one forget.
 The camera saw all, recorded all,
 As the story ended.
 Each moment was precious,
 Each glance, unique.
 We shared them.
 The scenes the camera captured
 Were all.

VISIONS OF OUR OWN.

We've tried to express, preserve some of these visions in the 1979 Excalibur. Each student sees life at Crown Point High School a little differently, through his own particular scope. We hope that we've captured at least a part of those scenes for everyone. The staff's job of fitting all the pieces of the year together to make a lasting picture was made easier by the cooperation of the faculty, administration, staff and the student body. We thank you for making our job less complicated.

A special thanks goes to Scott Kracht who designed the graphic art seen throughout the book, Barbara Toman who wrote the theme copy, and Miss Eleanor Britton who answered innumerable questions and made each person's job a little easier.
